Woodard Quits, Ends Ohio Prison Dispute

STATE WELFARE CHIEF ACCEPTS WARDEN'S MOVE

Leave Of Absence Granted Until Sept. 1, Date His Regime Ends

CONTROVERSY IS CLOSED

Exchange Of Notes Brings Solution; Armine Acting As Superintendent

COLUMBUS, June 17—State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood today announced the resignation of James C. Woodard as warden of Ohio penitentiary.

After reinstating him as of the date he was removed-April 1-Sherwood accepted the resignation effective Sept. 1. Sherwood in announcing the development said: "I have today accepted the resignation of James C. Woodard, warden of Ohio penitentiary, after reinstating him as of the date of removal. I had no hesitancy in accepting his resignation and, in view of his long service at the institution without a vacation, felt justified in granting him a leave of absence and vacation until Sept. 1, 1939."

In a brief letter to the welfare director, Woodard said: "I hereby tender my resignation as warden of Ohio penitentiary effective September 1."

Controversy Ends

The resignation ended a long controversy that began when Sherwood suspended Woodard last March 1 and later removed him as warden on April 1.

Until he resigned, Woodard was awaiting the decision of the State Civil Service commission to which he had appealed for reinstatement.

Woodard's suspension and subsequent removal followed a personal investigation by Sherwood shortly after he took office last January. The welfare director revealed that he had a conference with the former prison official and warned

'UKELELE IKE'S' HAIR RESTORED, BUT BEAUTY EXPERT GOES PAYLESS

HOLLYWOOD, June 17—Cliff Edwards, of "Ukulele Ike" fame, used to be quite bald—then he had a hair raising experience that put a luxurious crop on the top of his noggin.

That charge was on file in superior court today in a suit filed against him by Georgia O. George, beauty operator, who wants $324 which she claimed was what Edwards owed her for the hair restoring treatments.

Miss George claimed she was responsible for the restoration of Edwards' hair, but charged the comedian failed to pay her for her services.

FRENCH GIVE UP PHENIX, 71 MEN

Oil Spot In Indo-China Sea Marks Grave Of Big Submarine

PARIS, June 17 — A still, black spot of oil on the sea off Indo-China today told the death story of 71 officers and men of the French submarine Phenix — and the loss of the vessel under the crushing weight of 330 feet of water was confirmed by the Ministry of Marine in Paris.

Without explanation, the ministry told of the Phenix catastrophe, the fourth major submarine disaster this year, in the following communique:

"The vice-admiral of the Far-Eastern fleet telegraphed that the Phenix must be considered lost. This conclusion is sufficiently definite that a committee of inquiry has been named.

"On the morning of June 15, the submarines Phenix and Esprit carried out a feigned diving attack on the cruiser Lamotte Picquet. . . .

"We were first informed that the Phenix had disappeared some hours later, at a depth of 100 meters.

71 Men Aboard

"Oil remains on the surface at the spot. The total number of officers and men aboard was 71.

Attempts to reach the Phenix, in spite of the overpowering depth of the water in Cam-Rahn bay, nevertheless continued.

And one ray of hope remained with the wife of Lieut. Commander O. M. Bouchacourt, commander of the Phenix.

"Don't alarm the public," she asked government officials. "Perhaps all is not lost. I have con-

$2,500 ASKED AS DAMAGES AFTER AUTO, TRUCK HIT

Martin Shepard, W. Mound street, filed suit for $2,500 damages in Common Pleas court Saturday against the Reinhardt Trucking Co., of Portsmouth.

The action is based on a traffic accident on Route 23, eight miles south of Circleville, last Jan. 27. Mr. Shepard's suit alleges a truck driven by Homer Smith, employee of the company, was operated at an excessive speed, was on the wrong side of the center line and was not under control. Mr. Shepard asks damages for personal injuries and damage to his car.

AUTOS HIT AT CORNER

Autos driven by James R. Weaver, 19, of Chillicothe Route 6, and Gilbert Wright, 38, of 217 E. Union street, Circleville, were damaged at 6 p. m. Friday in a collision at a road intersection in Route 23, six miles north of Circleville. No one was hurt.

Mercury Reaches 96; Seven Persons Die In Chicago Area

Continued warm weather today, with the possibility of a temperature drop following thundershowers tonight, was the prediction as Central Ohio sweltered under the hottest spell of the year.

The mercury hit 96 degrees, Friday afternoon, four degrees under the high for the Summer set June 11 when the official recording was 100 degrees. Lowest temperature Friday night was 77.

CHICAGO, June 17—With seven persons already dead, Chicago's first intensive heat wave of the year moved into its second day today.

The temperature reached a 1939 peak of 92 late yesterday afternoon and was expected to hit 95 today.

Blasts of hot wind from the Southwest that at times reached a velocity of 40 miles an hour, caused some property damage and one death when a woman was crushed under a falling tree. The other victims were stricken with heart attacks under the glaring sun.

IRONTON, O., June 17 — The body of Russell Essman, 34-year-old Portsmouth steel worker, was recovered from Hecla pond, three miles north of Ironton, today. Essman, according to authorities, drowned while he and a group of friends were taking a midnight dip.

His body was recovered by his father, W. C. Essman, Portsmouth, and Jeff Mead, Ironton. Meanwhile, Ironton county officials temporarily held Lucille Akers, Elizabeth Evans and Verne Boggs, all of Ironton. Oscar McCaules and Paul Janney, both of Portsmouth, were released. Officials said intoxication charges might be filed against them.

GERMANS OFFER RUSSIANS PACT AGAINST STRIFE

PARIS, June 17 — Germany has offered the Soviet Union a non-aggression pact and a new trade set-up, the newspaper Paris-Midi reported today from Kaunas, Lithuania.

Dictator Josef Stalin has not replied to this latest German move to counteract Anglo-French overtures to Russia, said the newspaper, but Count Werner Von Schulenburg, German ambassador to Moscow, is on his way to Berlin to report his impression of Russian reaction.

In the meantime, said the paper, Russia continues to "stall" Britain and France.

American Dancer's Killer Beheaded

PARIS, June 17—On the same spot where "Bluebeard's" Henri Landru was decapitated 17 years ago, Eugen Weidmann, killer of Miss Jean DeKoven, Brooklyn dancer, and five others, died under the gleaming blade of the guillotine at the break of dawn today.

Weidmann's last walk from the jail where he spent nearly two years, to the scaffold was a wild mixture of initial turbulence and final calm.

"He lived like a monster and died like a saint," was the comment of his attorneys.

At first he fought bitterly, struggling and snarling in fury

Bucharest Police Arrest 11; Rumors Spread Of Attempt On Carol

BUCHAREST, June 17 — Discovery of a plot to assassinate Prime Minister Armand Calinescu was announced by police today.

Eleven arrests were made, police said. An arsenal of 22 hand grenades found in the plotters' headquarters was confiscated.

Discovery of the plot led to immediate rumors the assassins had intended to kill King Carol.

JOHN W. CHALFIN DIES AT 71 AFTER 2-YEAR ILLNESS

John William Chalfin, 71, a native of Salem, O., but a resident of Washington township for the last 32 years, died Friday at 9:30 p. m. at his home. He had been ill for two years.

The funeral will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Morris U. B. church, the Rev. L. S. Metzler officiating, with burial in Forest cemetery by M. S. Rinehart. Pallbearers will include his grandsons, Jack Chalfin, Harold, Eugene and Norbert Welch, and William and Robert Dietz.

Mr. Chalfin was born in Salem Jan. 24, 1867, a son of Phillip and Nancy K. Miller Chalfin. He married Frances A. Lanman in Washington C. H., Dec. 24, 1889. His widow surviving with three children, Clayton G., of Circleville; Mrs. Lloyd Welch, of Lancaster, and Mrs. Charles Dietz, of Columbus. A daughter, Anna A., preceded her father in death. A brother, Joseph, of McGuffey, O., survives also.

Mr. Chalfin was a member of the Morris U. B. church.

Mother Makes Way Into Slippery Well To Rescue Tiny Son

Mrs. Nellie Kozic and son Joe

BY ALMOST superhuman efforts, Mrs. Nellie Kozic, 22, of Circleville, Pa., near Pittsburgh, clambered down a slippery 23-foot well filled with 18 feet of water and rescued her three and one-half-year-old son, Joe, who had fallen into the pit. Mrs. Kozic collapsed after carrying the youngster to the surface in a hazardous ascent, then resumed her washing.

ITALIAN EDITOR SEES JOHN BULL IN WAR DANGER

ROME, June 17—Complete British capitulation or war were described today as the only possible solutions of the Anglo-Japanese crisis over Tientsin in an editorial in Regime Fascista, extremist Fascist newspaper.

The newspaper, edited by Signor Roberto Farinacci, member of the grand council of Fascism and outspoken critic of British policy, declared Japan has the full support of Italy in its present contention with England.

"The Japanese attitude regarding Tientsin," the editorial stated, "reflects the policy of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo triangle. The only solution is war or complete British capitulation."

Japan is linked to Rome and Berlin in an anti-Communist pact which, although "purely cultural" according to its signatories, is said to imply further strengthening of the triple alliance of totalitarian nations into a possible military accord against Russia, England and France.

NEW RELIEF ACT PASSES; F. D. R. TO FIGHT SLASH

WASHINGTON, June 17 — A $1,735,000,000 relief bill carrying several important concessions to President Roosevelt's demands and a few bitter pills for the administration to swallow came to the senate today after house passage at 1:09 o'clock this morning.

Immediately, it was made plain that the administration would wage a vigorous fight in the senate to reinstate provisions the President sought which were tossed out by the house, and to change administrative sections

BOY, 13, KILLED WHILE PLAYING AT 'WILD WEST'

WAUSEON, June 17—Thirteen-year-old David Leroy Lashuay liked to play the role of a "wild west" cowboy. And because he did, he was dead today at his farm home near here.

At least that was the opinion expressed today by Coroner H. M. Warner, who returned a verdict of accidental death by hanging.

The boy's body was discovered by his mother when he failed to return from feeding the chickens. Warner asserted David apparently had slipped from a ladder while playing at hanging himself.

FOUR SLAIN BY ANGRY PARENTS IN TWO CITIES

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 17—Two-year-old Joseph Butler and his 7-year-old sister, Eyvon, died in a Columbia hospital today from bullet wounds allegedly inflicted last night by their father, Neil Butler, an ex-convict, as they slept in their suburban home.

Police quoted the father as saying that he first shot and wounded his 28-year-old wife, and then after shooting the children turned the gun on himself.

Butler and his wife were believed to have a chance to recover. Mrs. Butler told police her husband had been drinking.

DENNIS, Mass., June 17 — Angered by his son's refusal to summon a doctor for him, Celestino Diguivoni, 68, today killed the son and a neighbor before turning a shotgun on himself.

After shooting his son, Joseph, 40, Diguivoni told another neighbor, Mrs. Olive Harriman, 50, that he had taken Joseph's life because the latter refused his request for medical assistance.

While Mrs. Harriman was calling state police at Barnstable Diguivoni killed a neighbor, Luigi Baldelli, 50, with another blast of the shotgun and then returned to his home and took his own life near the body of his slain son.

CHICK WEBB, FAMOUS AS SWING BAND LEADER, DIES

BALTIMORE, Md., June 17—Chick Webb, Negro orchestra leader, who helped make "A Tisket A Tasket" a natural song hit, survived the ditty written and sung by his chanteuse, Ella Fitzgerald, by only a few months. Webb was dead today, after failing to survive an operation at Johns Hopkins hospital last night. He was 30 years old and rose from a newsboy on Baltimore streets to enjoy highest regard from swing fans the country over.

INFANT'S DEATH INQUIRY DELAYED

Authorities Await Funeral Before Continuing Work; Mother Recalled

CLYDE, O., June 17—Officials attempting to unravel the mystery of the baby Fink kidnapping case today postponed until after the infant's funeral this afternoon their renewed questioning of the victim's relatives.

Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer announced that questioning of the family would be discontinued until after the funeral services, set for 2 p. m.

Hyzer and Howard G. Robinson, private investigator assisting Sandusky county authorities, had planned to recall Mrs. Velma Fink, 22, mother of the baby, for further tests with the lie detector this morning. The plans were changed after a number of Clyde residents protested against questioning the family before the funeral, Hyzer said.

Hyzer and Robinson continued, however, with lie detector tests of several Clyde residents. These included the friends of Ervin Fink, 23, divorced husband of Mrs. Fink, with whom he said he was playing cards on the kidnapping evening.

One development in the questioning of Mrs. Fink, officials said, was the fact that she had purchased gasoline at a station

WOUND IN HEART MAY BE FATAL TO CHICAGOAN, 19

CHICAGO, June 17—Frank Julian, 19, was near death today with a needle wound in the heart. It was inflicted accidentally by his 6-year-old brother, Robert.

The child was playing with an air pistol which shoots feathered darts. It was discharged and the dart struck his brother in the chest.

The older youth rubbed the spot and laughed it off, but later became ill and was taken to the hospital where his condition grew rapidly worse. Doctors were unable to see any wound and were puzzled by the ailment.

Investigation disclosed Robert had inserted a needle in the dart to make it "stick better" and it was found to have been broken off. X-rays were to be taken today to determine if the missing portion of the needle was still lodged in the youth's body.

Tientsin Sees Little Danger Of Clash At Sea Though Situation Is Tense

SHANGHAI, June 17—British troops today prevented an attempt by Japanese soldiers to take possession of a police station in Britain's defense area in the Western part of the city in an incident further complicating Anglo-Nipponese relations.

TIENSIN, June 17—Without equivocation, the Japanese army high command today formally rejected all British approaches for mediation of the dispute which prompted their blockade of Tientsin.

"It is no longer a local issue," an official statement said. "The situation has developed into a full protest against Great Britain's pro-Chiang Kai-Shek policy."

TIENSIN, June 17—Creating one of the most grave crises in the present Far Eastern tension, a Russian citizen was reported shot dead by a Japanese sentry outside the French and British concessions at Tientsin today. An English witness said the Soviet citizen was showing his credentials when he was killed. The shooting, it was alleged, was without apparent provocation.

TIENSIN, June 17—Three British warships, laden with food and well-armed to defend their mission, today were reported by Japanese sources to be speeding for Tientsin to run the Japanese-imposed blockade.

In Tientsin, where the British and French concessions are being throttled by a ring of Japanese bayonets, British troops manned the boundary barricades to guard against possible demonstrations by Japanese and Chinese being incited by agitators.

From the nearby ports of Chingwangtao and Weihaiwei, the reports said, the destroyer Decoy, escort ship Lowestoft, and depot ship Medway headed for Tientsin. Determined to steam up the Hai river to the western settlements, the first two fight ships sailed from Chingwangtao, the latter from Weihaiwei.

Orders Await Them

Down the river they will be confronted with Japanese orders that all ships proceeding upstream must be stopped and inspected by Japanese officers at the Japanese wharf in lower Tientsin. The British consul-general at Tientsin yesterday protested in the case of two merchant ships so stopped.

Lying off Tangku, the ocean port of Tientsin, are several Japanese warships, it was understood, but there seemed to be little likelihood of any armed engagement. The British vessels will have to steam 25 miles up the Hai river to reach the foreign settlements at Tientsin.

In spite of all Japanese insistence that no measures have been taken to cut off the food supply of the Franco-British zones, the food shortage in the concessions is growing more acute.

The Japanese have placed motor patrol boats on the Hai river opposite the former German concession, which adjoined the present British concession on the East, for the purpose of turning back all boats trying to carry vegetables into the British area.

Hundreds of farmers, braving Japanese wrath and bayonets, streamed towards the British concession with loads of produce, but all were stopped. Most of the farmers waited all night for admission, but they were rejected.

British authorities, who have repeatedly protested to local Japanese navy and army officers against the stopping of food supplies, again charged that the Japanese are not relaxing their discrimination

DENNIS, Mass., June 17—Angered by his son's refusal to summon a doctor for him, Celestino Diguivoni, 68, today killed the son and a neighbor before turning a shotgun on himself.

After shooting his son, Joseph, 40, Diguivoni told another neighbor, Mrs. Olive Harriman, 50, that he had taken Joseph's life because the latter refused his request for medical assistance.

While Mrs. Harriman was calling state police at Barnstable Diguivoni killed a neighbor, Luigi Balidelli, 50, with another blast of the shotgun and then returned to his home and took his own life near the body of his slain son.

CHICK WEBB, FAMOUS AS SWING BAND LEADER, DIES

BALTIMORE, Md., June 17—Chick Webb, Negro orchestra leader, who helped make "A Tisket A Tasket" a natural song hit, survived the ditty written and sung by his chanteuse, Ella Fitzgerald, by only a few months. Webb was dead today, after failing to survive an operation at Johns Hopkins hospital last night.

He was 50 years old and rose from a newsboy on Baltimore streets to enjoy highest regard from swing fans the country over.

INFANT'S DEATH INQUIRY DELAYED

Authorities Await Funeral Before Continuing Work; Mother Recalled

CLYDE, O., June 17—Officials attempting to unravel the mystery of the baby Fink kidnap-murder case today postponed until after the infant's funeral this afternoon their renewed questioning of the victim's relatives.

Prosecutor A. L. Hyzer announced that questioning of the family would be discontinued until after the funeral services, set for 2 p. m.

Hyzer and Howard G. Robinson, private investigator assisting Sandusky county authorities, had planned to recall Mrs. Velma Fink, 22, mother of the baby, for further tests with the lie detector this morning. The plans were changed after a number of Clyde residents protested against questioning the family before the funeral, Hyzer said.

Hyzer and Robinson continued, however, with lie detector tests of several Clyde residents. These included the friends of Ervin Fink, 23, divorced husband of Mrs. Fink, with whom he said he was playing cards on the kidnap evening.

One development in the questioning of Mrs. Fink, officials said, was the fact that she had purchased gasoline at a station (Continued on Page Eight)

WOUND IN HEART MAY BE FATAL TO CHICAGOAN, 19

CHICAGO, June 17—Frank Julian, 19, was near death today with a needle wound in the heart. It was inflicted accidentally by his 6-year-old brother, Robert.

The child was playing with an air pistol which shoots feathered darts. It was discharged and the dart struck his brother in the chest.

The older youth rubbed the spot and laughed it off, but later became ill and was taken to the hospital where his condition grew rapidly worse. Doctors were unable to see any wound and were puzzled by the ailment.

Investigation disclosed Robert had inserted a needle in the dart to make it "stick better" and it was found to have been broken off. X-rays were to be taken today to determine if the missing portion of the needle was still lodged in the youth's body.

Tientsin Sees Little Danger Of Clash At Sea Though Situation Is Tense

SHANGHAI, June 17—British troops today prevented an attempt by Japanese soldiers to take possession of a police station in Britain's defense area in the Western part of the city in an incident further complicating Anglo-Japanese relations.

TIENSIN, June 17—Without equivocation, the Japanese army high command today formally rejected all British approaches for mediation of the dispute which prompted their blockade of Tientsin.

"It is no longer a local issue," an official statement said. "The situation has developed into a full protest against Great Britain's pro-Chiang Kai-Shek policy."

TIENSIN, June 17—Creating one of the most grave crises in the present Far Eastern tension, a Russian citizen was reported shot dead by a Japanese sentry outside the French and British concessions at Tientsin today.

An English witness said the Soviet citizen was showing his credentials when he was killed. The shooting, it was alleged, was without apparent provocation.

TIENSIN, June 17—Three British warships, laden with food and well-armed to defend their mission, today were reported by Japanese sources to be speeding for Tientsin to run the Japanese-imposed blockade.

In Tientsin, where the British and French concessions are being throttled by a ring of Japanese bayonets, British troops manned the boundary barricades to guard against possible demonstrations by Japanese and Chinese being incited by agitators.

From the nearby ports of Chingwangtao and Weihaiwei, the reports said, the destroyer Decoy, escort ship Lowestoft, and depot ship Medway headed for Tientsin. Determined to steam up the Hai river to the western settlements, the first two fight ships sailed from Chingwangtao, the latter from Weihaiwei.

Orders Await Them
Down the river they will be confronted with Japanese orders that all ships proceeding upstream must be stopped and inspected by Japanese officers at the Japanese wharf in lower Tientsin.

The British consul-general at Tientsin yesterday protested in the case of two merchant ships so stopped.

Lying off Tangu, the ocean port of Tientsin, are several Japanese warships. It was understood, but there seemed to be little likelihood of any armed engagement. The British vessels will have to steam 25 miles up the Hai river to reach the foreign settlements at Tientsin.

In spite of all Japanese insistence that no measures have been taken to cut off the food supply of the Franco-British zones, the food shortage in the concessions is growing more acute.

The Japanese have placed motor patrol boats on the Hai river opposite the former German concession, which adjoined the present British concession on the East, for the purpose of turning back all boats trying to carry vegetables into the British area.

Hundreds of farmers, braving Japanese wrath and bayonets, streamed towards the British concession with loads of produce, but all were stopped. Most of the farmers waited all night for admission, but they were rejected.

British authorities, who have repeatedly protested to local Japanese navy and army officers against the stopping of food supplies, again charged that the Japanese are not relaxing their discrimination (Continued on Page Eight)

NEW MILE RECORD POSSIBLE AS WOODERSON, OTHER STARS MEET

FRAIL ENGLISH RUNNER TO SET PACE FOR RACE

Cunningham Given Chance To Overtake Spectacled Invader

By Lawton Carver PRINCETON, N. J., June 17—The greatest mile in history is what they call it in eager anticipation, and some 30,000 spectators will gather late today at Palmer stadium to sit in judgment when, finally, Sydney Wooderson, a frail little Englishman, will meet Glen (Old Bones) Cunningham. Others in the field will include Chuck Fenske, Blaine Rideoout and Archie San Romani, who are regarded as so much fillies, although a few heretics wander around suggesting that perhaps Wooderson and Cunningham both will be beaten. They give Fenske a chance.

In any case, the race brings to these shores for the first time the man recognized the world over as the mile record-holder by virtue of his outdoor 4:06.4, the same being Wooderson—a 5 foot, 6 inch, 136-pounder of 24, who wears spectacles and appears to be perilously close to needing some good American beef steaks. As a matter of fact, he doesn't need anything, except room to run in, considering that he is top hand at all distances from 800 meters up to his favorite, the mile.

Cunningham 30 As for Old Bones, he is 30, which may be and probably is too aged for the current demands. However, he is a rugged, barrel-chested, tough competitor who will scale about 160 and who probably has run more great mile races than any man ever clocked. His accomplishments include that 4:04.1 mile, fastest in history, but unrecognized internationally due to the fact it was established indoors.

Whether that time still will be all-time tops by night fall is problematical, a moot point bringing on the disquieting possibility of a Fenske victory in something like 4:09, or even slower. That would be a catastrophe, to be sure, but it could happen here.

Wooderson now says that he is going to run out in front making the space and try for a 4:03 mile, but just previous to that announcement he was determined to lay back and be content simply to beat Cunningham, regardless of the time. The time and the nature of the race probably will be determined by the way Wooderson runs. It doesn't seem likely that Cunningham will do any fancy footling in the early going. He figures to be saving his old pins until he makes his finishing charge.

The Briton is the favorite because of his recent performances and the possibility that Cunningham will not be in top form if, indeed, he ever again can reach the peak he has known. They generally concede the latter second place, Fenske third—with a chance to win if Wooderson and Cunningham play around—Rideoout and San Romani fourth and fifth, or vice versa.

First Quarter in 60 In the event the customers get the kind of race they hope for from Wooderson, they will see him attempting to run the first quarter in 60 seconds flat, the second in 61, the third in 62 and the last in 60, all adding up into the long-dreamed about record performance in a clash between the two greatest. Of some significance may be the fact that the Princeton track is notoriously fast.

While virtually the only thing you hear anything about around here is the Wooderson-Cunningham duel, the programs includes five events and some notable performers, as follows:

Quarter-mile—Archie Williams, Harold Cagle, Bill Fritz, Paul Douglas, and John Quigley. Half mile—John Borican, Charlie Beetham, Howard Borck, Campbell Kane, and Ed Burrows. Three-quarters—Wayne Rideoout, Jim Kehoe, Billy Southworth, Sanford Goldberg and Leslie MacMittchell. Two miles—Don Lash, Tommy Decker, Joe McCluskey, George DeGeorge and Bradley Rendell.

VON CRAMM TO ACCEPT U. S. RULING BARRING HIM

BRISTOL, England, June 17—Baron Von Cramm, the German tennis ace, today planned no further action to obtain a visa to enter the United States to play in the Forest Hills championships in September after the American consulate in Berlin declined to issue him a temporary visa. It was indicated the refusal was based on Von Cramm's conviction in Germany on a morals charge. The German said he planned to settle down to live in Switzerland where he represents a sporting goods firm.

Handicap System Urged For American League

NEW YORK, June 17—Here it is only mid-June and the Yanks already are 11½ games ahead of the Red Sox in second place. This leads one to wonder if baseball mightn't take a tip from polo and handicap the Yanks on a similar basis. The American polo team, with the International Cup already clinched, is going to play the British a final game tomorrow and spot the British to 10 goals as a starter.

Baseball might copy this giving all the other teams from 1 to 25 games head start on the Yanks and let that murderous outfit make up the deficit.

THREE NINES TIE FOR FIFTH SPOT IN ASSOCIATION

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 17—St. Paul, Columbus and Milwaukee were tied for fifth position in the American association race as the Ohio Red Birds arrived here today for a series opener with the Saints.

The Birds came here from Kansas City, where the league-leading Blues said farewell to Columbus by taking both games of a double header. The western stars won 6 to 5 and 4 to 0.

Priddy, second baseman for the Blues, won the first game when he broke a deadlock in the eighth inning with a homer. In the second the pace setters won by taking advantage of the visitors' errors.

Minneapolis, playing at home, split a double header with Indianapolis. The Millers lost the first game 8 to 1, and the defeat cut their six-game winning streak. They came back in the second by winning 7 to 1.

St. Paul and Louisville also split a twin bill, the Saints taking the opener 2 to 1 and the Colonels winning the nightcap 4 to 0. The last-place Toledo Mud Hens beat Milwaukee 5 to 1.

Stevens' Blow With Two On Paths Upsets Purinas In 4-3 Contest

Blue Ribbon Dairy softballers put over three runs in the top half of the sixth frame Friday evening to gain a victory over the Purina feeds. The final score was 4-3.

The Purina outfit went ahead 3-0 in the fourth frame on a double by Anderson, Davis' boot that permitted Melson to reach base, and Chuck Bartholomew's home run. The Purinas went down with only one man reaching base from that time on.

The Blue Ribbon boys scored in the fifth without a hit, Hutchinson walking and moving around on sacrifice flies.

The big sixth frame for the winners went something like this: Holland popped to first base before Watson doubled. Smith popped out to third base for the second out, but Brungs walked. Stevens, dairy catcher, caught hold of a fast one and parked it far into the outfield to clear the sacks.

Trojans To Win National Title For Fifth Time

LOS ANGELES, June 17 — Southern California's Trojans, with 15 qualifiers appeared virtually certain to annex their fifth consecutive National Collegiate Athletic Association track championship in today's finals at the Los Angeles coliseum.

The meet, was expected to attract 20,000 fans to watch the nation's greatest athletes in what was practically a preview of the American Olympic team for 1940.

A survey of the leading teams, on the strength of their showing in yesterday's preliminary trials, indicated Southern California would score in the neighborhood of 77 points, with Stanford second with 43, barely nosing out Michigan with 42.

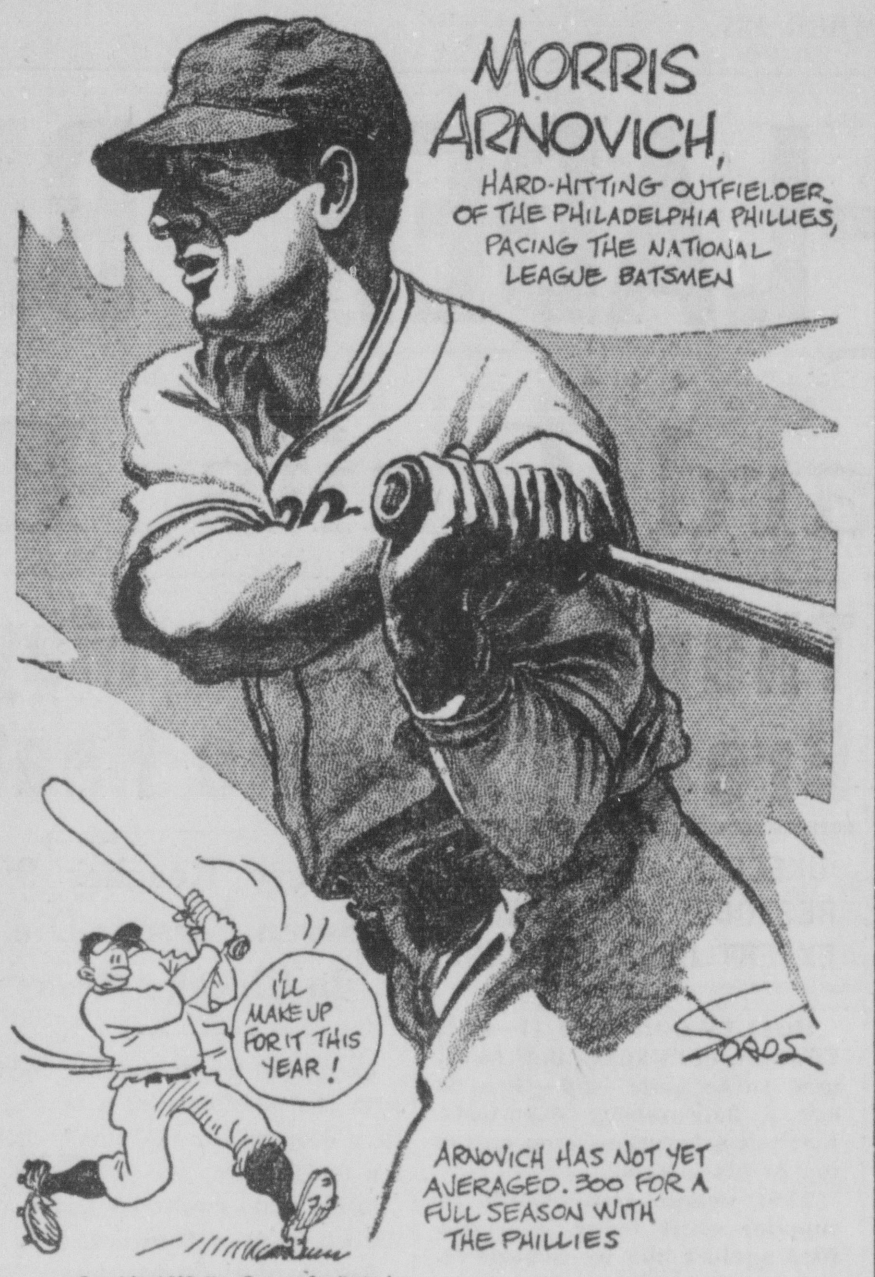

Louie Zamperini, with one eye coked on the time to be made by Sydney Wooderson of England, or any of the milers at Princeton today, was primed for the battle of his life in the mile run. Zamperini, the defending champion, was hopeful of lowering whatever mark might be set at Princeton while successfully defending his title. He ran a 4:08.3 mile a year ago in the same meet, and with John Munski of Missouri, and Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, capable of extending him today, it seemed possible he would realize his ambition.

DON McNEILL IN FINALS
PARIS, June 17—Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, will meet Bobby Riggs, the top-ranking American amateur, in the singles finals of the French hard courts tennis championships at Roland Garros stadium tomorrow. McNeill won his way into the finals by eliminating Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., 6-2, 7-5, 7-9, 6-2 in a semi-final match.

They give Fenske a chance.

In any case, the race brings to these shores for the first time the man recognized the world over as the mile record-holder by virtue of his outdoor 4:06.4, the same being Wooderson—a 5 foot, 6 inch, 136-pounder of 24, who wears spectacles and appears to be perilously close to needing some good American beef steaks. As a matter of fact, he doesn't need anything, except room to run in, considering that he is top hand at all distances from 800 meters up to his favorite, the mile.

Cunningham 30 As for Old Bones, he is 30, which may be and probably is too aged for the current demands. However, he is a rugged, barrel-chested, tough competitor who will scale about 160 and who probably has run more great mile races than any man ever clocked. His accomplishments include that 4:04.4 mile, fastest in history, but unrecognized internationally due to the fact it was established indoors.

Whether that time still will be all-time tops by night fall is problematical, a moot point bringing on the disquieting possibility of a Fenske victory in something like 4:09, or even slower. That would be a catastrophe, to be sure, but it could happen here.

Wooderson now says that he is going to run out in front making the space and try for a 4:03 mile, but just previous to that announcement he was determined to lay back and be content simply to beat Cunningham, regardless of the time. The time and the nature of the race probably will be determined by the way Wooderson runs. It doesn't seem likely that Cunningham will do any fancy footings in the early going. He figures to be saving his old pins until he makes his finishing charge.

The Briton is the favorite because of his recent performances and the possibility that Cunningham will not be in top form if, indeed, he ever again can reach the peak he has known. They generally concede the latter second chance, Fenske third—with a chance to win if Wooderson and Cunningham play around—Rideout and San Romani fourth and fifth, or vice versa.

First Quarter in 60 In the event the customers get the kind of race they hope for from Wooderson, they will see him attempting to run the first quarter in 60 seconds flat, the second in 61, the third in 62 and the last in 60, all adding up into the long-dreamed about record performance in a clash between the two greatest. Of some significance may be the fact that the Princeton track is notoriously fast.

While virtually the only thing you hear anything about around here is the Wooderson-Cunningham duel, the programs includes five events and some notable performers, as follows:

Quarter-mile—Archie Williams, Harold Cagle, Bill Fritz, Paul Douglas, and John Quigley. Half mile—John Borican, Charlie Beetham, Howard Borck, Campbell Kane, and Ed Burrows. Three-quarters—Wayne Rideout, Jim Kehoe, Billy Southworth, Sanford Goldberg and Leslie MacMittchell. Two miles—Don Lash, Tommy Deckard, Joe McCluskey, George DeGeorge and Bradley Rendell.

VON CRAMM TO ACCEPT U. S. RULING BARRING HIM

BRISTOL, England, June 17—Baron Von Cramm, the German tennis ace, today planned no further action to obtain a visa to enter the United States to play in the Forest Hills championships in September after the American consulate in Berlin declined to issue him a temporary visa.

It was indicated the refusal was based on Von Cramm's conviction in Germany on a morals charge. The German said he planned to settle down to live in Switzerland where he represents a sporting goods firm.

Handicap System Urged For American League

NEW YORK, June 17—Here it is only mid-June and the Yankees already are 11½ games ahead of the Red Sox in second place.

This leads one to wonder if baseball mightn't take a tip from polo and handicap the Yankees on a similar basis. The American polo team, with the International Cup already clinched, is going to play the British a final game tomorrow and spot the British to 10 goals as a starter.

Baseball might copy this giving all the other teams from 1 to 25 games head start on the Yankees and let that murderous outfit make up the deficit.

As it is, the American League race is a joke and rapidly becoming more laughable.

The Yankees trimmed the Indians again yesterday 4-3, and moved another notch ahead of the Red Sox, who bowed to the Tigers, 8-7. It was young Atley Donald's seventh straight victory and he has yet to suffer a set-back with the Yankees behind him.

It was nine straight for the Tigers who are now showing their true class and who should finish no worse than second. Unfortunately for the Tigers, they moved into the Yankee lair today and that great winning streak probably will meet an untimely end before they leave town.

The Browns seemed to have a game safely in the bag when they scored seven runs in the second inning but the Athletics kept plugging away, scored three in the ninth, and won out, 11-10.

The Senators climbed aboard Frasier for four runs in the first inning and, thus bolstered, old Harry Kelley who moved along to beat the White Sox, 5-2. The Giants knocked off the Cubs, 6-4, for their eighth straight victory, moved up into third place ahead of the Dodgers, and are in a nice spot to challenge the second-place Cardinals with whom they open a series today.

The Cards picked up half a game on the idle Reds by trouncing the Dodgers, 7 to 6. Medwick and Padgett, both of whom the Dodgers recently tried to buy, hit homers while lean Lon Warneke and Curt Davis kept the Brooklynites subdued until the ninth when a four-run rally fell just one short of tying the score.

And with Lee Handley enjoying a field day at bat and on the bases the Pirates trimmed the Bees, 4-2, but it may prove a costly victory for Bob Kilger, Pirate right hander, was hit on the knee by the line drive and may be out for some time.

"BIG JOHN" HAS CHANCE TO WIN OVER CHALLENGER

NEW YORK, June 17—Johnstown, the "roaring flood," will receive an opportunity this afternoon at Aqueduct to smooth out the dents in his shield which Challendon kicked in the afternoon of the Preakness. The three-year-old champion will clash with his erstwhile conquerer in the Dwyer, a struggle of one mile and a furlong. Five other thoroughbreds are named as potential starters.

Johnstown and Challendon meet at equal weights of 126 pounds. This will be the rubber between the pair. Johnstown ran away from Challendon in the Kentucky Derby, while Challendon tripped up the champion in the Preakness on a sloppy track.

With the track fast today, Johnstown will be an odds-on favorite.

THREE NINES TIE FOR FIFTH SPOT IN ASSOCIATION

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 17—St. Paul, Columbus and Milwaukee were tied for fifth position in the American association race as the Ohio Red Birds arrived here today for a series opener with the Saints.

The Birds came here from Kansas City, where the league-leading Blues said farewell to Columbus by taking both games of a double header. The western stars won 6 to 5 and 4 to 0.

Priddy, second baseman for the Blues, won the first game when he broke a deadlock in the eighth inning with a homer. In the second the pace setters won by taking advantage of the visitors' errors.

Minneapolis, playing at home, split a double header with Indianapolis. The Millers lost the first game 8 to 1, and the defeat cut their six-game winning streak. They came back in the second by winning 7 to 1.

St. Paul and Louisville also split a twin bill, the Saints taking the opener 2 to 1 and the Colonels winning the nightcap 4 to 0. The last-place Toledo Mud Hens beat Milwaukee 5 to 1.

CIRCUIT CLOUTS FEATURE SPEEDY SOFTBALL GAME

Stevens' Blow With Two On Paths Upsets Purins In 4-3 Contest

Blue Ribbon Dairy softballers put over three runs in the top half of the sixth frame Friday evening to gain a victory over the Purina feeds. The final score was 4-3.

The Purina outfit went ahead 3-0 in the fourth frame on a double by Anderson, Davis' boot that permitted Melson to reach base, and Chuck Bartholomew's home run. The Purins went down with only one man reaching base from that time on.

The Blue Ribbon boys scored in the fifth without a hit, Hutchinson walking and moving around on sacrifice flies.

The big sixth frame for the winners went something like this: Holland popped to first base before Watson doubled. Smith popped out to third base for the second out, but Brungs walked. Stevens, dairy catcher, caught hold of a fast one and parked it far into the outfield to clear the sacks.

TROJANS TO WIN NATIONAL TITLE FOR FIFTH TIME

LOS ANGELES, June 17—Southern California's Trojans, with 15 qualifiers appeared virtually certain to annex their fifth consecutive National Collegiate Athletic Association track championship in today's finals at the Los Angeles coliseum.

The meet, was expected to attract 20,000 fans to watch the nation's greatest athletes in what was practically a preview of the American Olympic team for 1940.

A survey of the leading teams, on the strength of their showing in yesterday's preliminary trials, indicated Southern California would score in the neighborhood of 77 points, with Stanford second with 43, barely nosing out Michigan with 42.

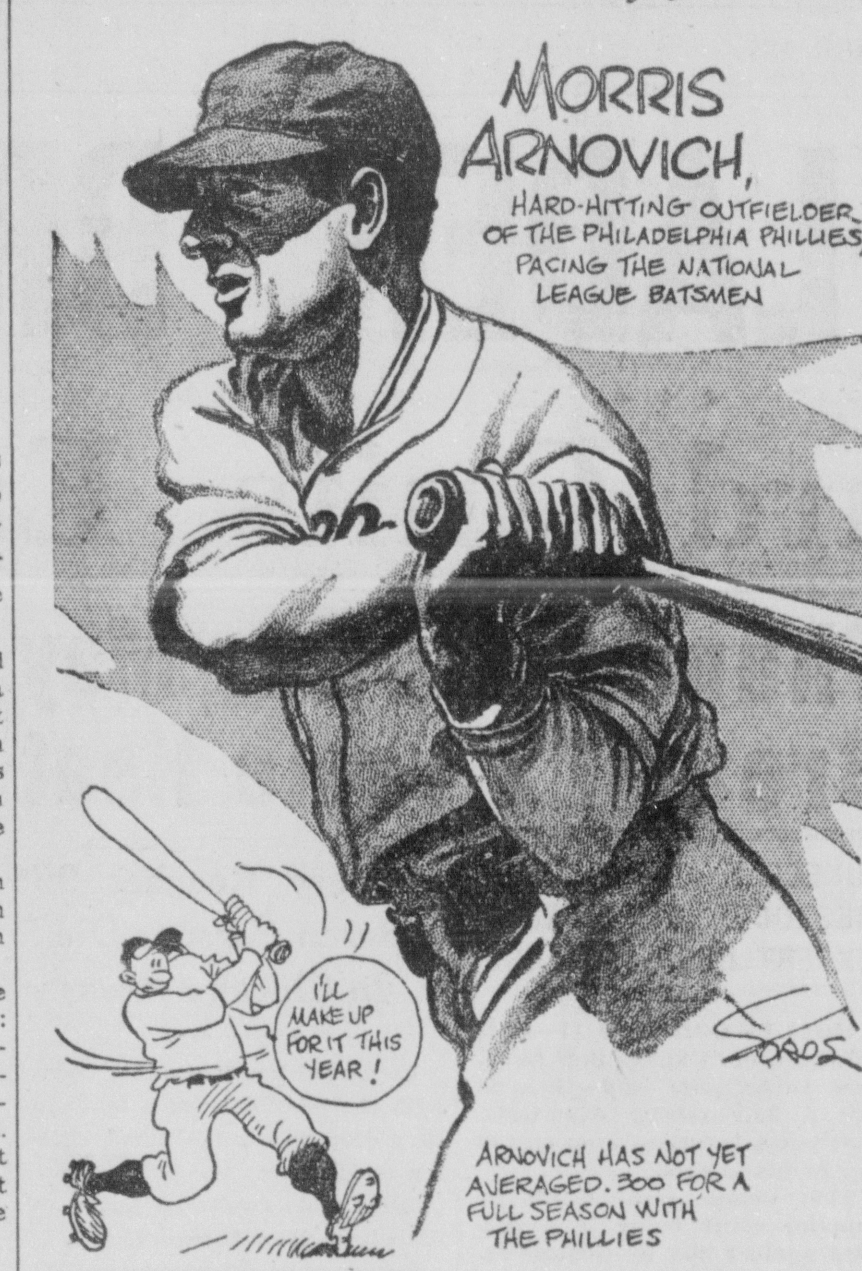

Louis Zamperini, with one eye cocked on the time to be made by Sydney Wooderson of England, or any of the milers at Princeton today, was primed for the battle of his life in the mile run. Zamperini, the defending champion, was hopeful of lowering whatever mark might be set at Princeton while successfully defending his title. He ran a 4:08.3 mile a year ago in the same meet, and with John Munksi of Missouri, and Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, capable of extending him today, it seemed possible he would realize his ambition.

DON McNEILL IN FINALS

PARIS, June 17—Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, will meet Bobby Riggs, the top-ranking American amateur, in the singles finals of the French hard courts tennis championships at Roland Garros stadium tomorrow. McNeill won his way into the finals by eliminating Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., 6-2, 7-5, 7-9, 6-2 in a semi-final match.

What does a football coach do during Summer? . . . Well, if he's lucky, he lectures. . . . Look at Bo McMillin's schedule: July 31-Aug. 4, Indiana's football clinic; Aug. 20-22, Long Island U's clinic, and Aug. 27-28, Fort Wayne, Ind., North high clinic. . . . By that time Bo will have to head back to Bloomington and begin worrying about Indiana's Big Ten schedule.

The Rumor Boys continue to bet you that Oscar Vitt and Del Baker will lose their managerial jobs first. . . . However, in Cleveland there is nothing said to indicate Old O's is on his way out. . . . And Detroit's sudden spurt makes Baker's post appear somewhat more secure.

One of the better batting averages of this baseball season belongs to a girl. . . . She's Frances Williams who is hitting .546 with a touring Texas softball team. . . . In 1936 and, again, in 1937, Frances was picked as the outstanding girl basketball player of the country.

Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers may not meet, after all, for their proposed lightweight scuffle. . . . Their respective managers, Eddie Mead and Al Weill, are feuding. . . . If the two plots bury the hatchet in the interests of sport and gate receipts Henry and Lou will tangle Aug. 9.

If Johnny Kelliher clinches quarterback job with Notre Dame next Fall he will be the first son of an Irish grid star to win a letter. . . . Bill Kelliher, his dad, was a South Bend football brilliant and teammate of the late great Knute Rockne.

TWO PASTORS, LAY DELEGATE TO ATTEND LUTHERAN CONVENTION

Indiana City Is Scene Of Big Session

Many Outstanding Members Of Lutheran Denomination On Program

The Revs. G. J. Troutman and G. L. Troutman senior and junior pastors, respectively, of Trinity Lutheran church, and John Himrod, E. Union street, church delegate, will go to Richmond, Ind., June 20 to 23, to attend the ninth annual convention of the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. H. D. Fudge and E. F. Martin, of Ashville, will also attend the convention, representing the First English Lutheran church of Ashville.

The two American Lutheran churches of Richmond, will be the hosts to the convention. These congregations are served by Rev. O. R. Smith and the Rev. Herbert Nottbohm.

A pastor's choir of 30 voices, under the direction of the Rev. E. G. Ackerman, Coldwater, will sing at the opening community service of the convention, at which the Rev. F. H. Roepecke, Dayton, will deliver the confessional address.

"We Believe in God" will be the general theme of the devotional program as announced by the chaplain of the meeting, Dr. G. C. Gast, professor of New Testament at the Seminary of Capital University, Columbus. Dr. Gast will address the body on the subject, "We Believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth."

Dr. Otto Mees, D. D., L. L. D., president of Capital University, will speak on the subject, "We believe in Jesus Christ, Risen and Exalted."

The Rev. James W. Schillinger, Columbus, president of the Ohio District, will present his official report and message to the assembly on Tuesday afternoon of convention week.

Dr. Emanuel Poppen, president of the American Lutheran church, will report on the state of the Lutheran church in the world.

The 350 pastors and laymen of the convention will have separate group meetings on Wednesday afternoon of the convention week. The pastors will discuss the question of "The Spiritual Objectives of our Jubilee Celebration," after it is presented by President Poppen, while the laymen will hear Mr. George Rilling, Anna, who will speak to them on "What the Pastor May Expect of the Church Members."

At a community church service, which will be held on Wednesday evening, June 21, the Rev. Clarence Weiss, Dayton, will deliver the sermon, and Pastor Herbert Nottbohm, Richmond, will serve as liturgist.

The Rev. Frank Jordan, Clyde, will read a paper on "Reciprocal

Paul Writes Personal Letters

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Timothy 1:1-4; 6:11-16; II Timothy 1:1-14; Titus 1:1-6; Philommon.

"My dearly beloved son," Paul calls his young disciple Timothy, to whom he writes one of his charming personal letters, referring therein to Timothy's mother, Eunice, and grandmother, Lois.

Philemon of Ephesus was a rich man, quite a contrast to the usual poor Christian, and was generous to the church. His servant, Onesimus, stole money from him and ran away to Rome.

In Rome Onesimus encountered Paul and was converted. Paul wished to keep him, but felt he should go back to Philemon, and wrote the latter asking him to take Onesimus back and forgive him.

During the writing of these personal letters to his friends, Paul was a prisoner in his own house in Rome. He was released and then again made prisoner. (GOLDEN TEXT—II Timothy 2:15)

6,180 ITALIANS ARE ON RELIEF ROLL IN FRANCE

PARIS.—Two jobless Ethiopians and one unemployed citizen of the Panama Canal Zone today figure largely upon his city's problem list.

Not as individuals but as part of the great army of foreign unemployed on relief in Paris.

For of the 206,539 persons on relief rolls here, more than 17,000 are foreigners.

Italy leads the list with 6,180. "Mussolini should take them and the two Abyssinians back to help with his new Empire in Africa," a relief director told International News Service.

Poland is second with 2,174 with Russia a close third, 2,159.

Chinamen on Relief
Ninety-two Chinamen are getting weekly relief. They, according to records, were brought over during the war to help in the war factories and the city finds it cheaper to keep them on the dole than to repatriate them.

Before the influx of Spanish refugees there were 1,700 Spaniards. Georgia, unrecognized country of the Midway, is represented by forty-three jobless men. Paraguay and Uruguay have two and one respectively and Haiti has four.

The United States has no unemployed on the list although many American in Paris claim they are out of work.

6,180 ITALIANS ARE ON RELIEF ROLL IN FRANCE

PARIS.—Two jobless Ethiopians and one unemployed citizen of the Panama Canal Zone today figure largely upon his city's problem list.

Not as individuals but as part of the great army of foreign unemployed on relief in Paris.

For of the 206,539 persons on relief rolls here, more than 17,000 are foreigners.

Italy leads the list with 6,180.

"Mussolini should take them and the two Abyssinians back to help with his new Empire in Africa," a relief director told International News Service.

Poland is second with 2,174 with Russia a close third, 2,159.

Chinamen on Relief

Ninety-two Chinamen are getting weekly relief. They, according to records, were brought over during the war to help in the war factories and the city finds it cheaper to keep them on the dole than to repatriate them.

Before the influx of Spanish refugees there were 1,700 Spaniards. Georgia, unrecognized country of the Midways, is represented by forty-three jobless men. Paraguay and Uruguay have two and one respectively and Haiti has four.

The United States has no unemployed on the list although many American in Paris claim they are out of work.

YOUNG MEN'S FEET

VACATION time — time to get out the old, worn volume of Kipling and read again the immortal poem of a man who really understood vacations.

"Now the Four-Way Lodge is opened,
now the Hunting Winds are loose—
Now the Smokes of Spring go up to clear the brain;

Now the Young Men's hearts are troubled for the whisper of the Trues,
Now the Red Gods make their medicine again.

Who hath seen the beaver busied?
Who hath watched the black-tail mating?

Who hath lain alone to hear the wild-goose cry?

Who hath worked the chosen water where the ouananiche is waiting,
Or the sea-trout's jumping-crazy for the fly?"

And so on, through all the poetic catalogue of Summer lures, never matched in any vacation folder, till you end as you began with haunting refrain:

"And we go—go—go away from here!
On the other side the world
we're overdue.

Send the road is clear before you when the old Spring-fret comes o'er you,

And the Red Gods call for you."

They say Kipling isn't read much nowadays. Well, here's one poem, at least, written in America for Americans, that still has a kick in it for any he-man or she-woman with a normal love of outdoor life.

CORPORATIVE STATE

WITH so many types of government appearing in the world, there comes the "corporative state," advocated by two speakers at the National Catholic Social Action Congress in Cleveland. It would be a political organization of functional occupational groups. Partial examples are said to exist in the governments now arising in Ireland and Portugal.

Prof F. W. Grose of Notre Dame College described such a state as "not totalitarian, not Fascist or Communist." He urged progress toward such a pattern through "establishment of vigorous occupational groups, of which the cooperative and the professional societies are the best examples."

The first push toward this sort of thing in America, perhaps, came from Columbus Austin Bowsher, who a generation ago preached, in Cleveland and Philadelphia, a sort of United States of Industry. He would have abolished arbitrary political units and substituted economic and occupational "states" represented at Wash-

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

CORRUPTION IN LOUISIANA

WASHINGTON — During recent weeks a congressional committee investigating P. W. A. has scrutinized the political views of small-fry workers debated whether W. P. A. should have produced the "Swing Mikado", and leveled the charge of Communism at W. P. A. white collarites.

Meanwhile it has completely ignored what is perhaps the worst evil of W. P. A., its use to build up powerful state political machines. Whether the members of the House committee ignored this phase of the investigation because some of their own political machines might be involved, is not known. But it is known that in certain States, such as Louisiana, the dominating political machine has deducted a percentage from the salaries of workers. It is in this way that the political steamroller which replaced Huey Long now rules with even greater force than the Kingfish.

Furthermore, the W. P. A. investigating committee easily could have unearthed evidence that W. P. A. workers, and materials, were being used on the private property of state officials belonging to the political machines.

LOUISIANA AFFIDAVITS

Evidence regarding W. P. A. scandals in Louisiana recently has been turned over to the Department of Justice, and may become the basis of a drive to clean up state political machines similar to the drive Attorney General Murphy is waging to clean up the judiciary.

Among this evidence is an affidavit signed on June 2 by Joseph Alvin Barbay, a W. P. A. assistant foreman in Louisiana, who states that "during the past Summer, 1938, for a period of approximately two months, at the instruction of George Caldwell" (construction superintendent), he "was ordered to proceed to Covington and build a barn and a log house for Richard W. Leche (Governor of Louisiana), on his privately owned property. Later, for a period of approximately six weeks, he was ordered to again report to the Leche estate for work, where we converted his old stable into a corn barn. . . .

"We were transferred to a private construction of a building located on (Louisiana State) University property belonging to Goode Smith. (Thirty or forty Negroes were assigned to the work). Work progressed on this property until it was rumored that one of the W. P. A. inspectors was enroute to make an inspection trip, whereupon the workers, Negroes, and those assigned to this work who were in reality W. P. A. workers, were forced to flee, and to hide in fear that they would be seen by the W. P. A. Inspector.

"Jimmy Marshall, who was the W. P. A. Foreman, instructed these men to 'get away from this building and beat it back to the Coliseum, the inspectors are coming, and don't let them see you'."

"Ages" in "Life" of Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AT DIFFERENT periods of the life span there are striking differences in the nature of tuberculosis, both as to the symptoms and the outlook for life, and also to the danger to other human beings who might come into contact with the person who has the disease.

Tuberculosis, according to modern ideas, lasts a lifetime, is almost always acquired in infancy and is entirely different in infancy than it is in adult life. In infancy it is located mostly in the lymphatic nodes of the body and not until maturity does it involve the lungs. Tuberculosis of the bones is almost entirely a disease of infancy and childhood.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Infected at Home

Since infants cannot move about to court infection, they are ordinarily infected at home, and are exposed to heavy and continued infection or none at all. In other words, infants get tuberculosis from some member of the household—parent, grandparent, brother or sister.

Food and nutrition play an important part in the outlook of infantile tuberculosis. In other words, of two infants, both of which are exposed to infection, the one who lives in a household where there is an abundance of good food is more liable to overcome the infection.

From the second to the fifth year of life children develop a considerable immunity to tuberculosis; few cases of active clinical tuberculosis can be detected at this period. Between five years of age and puberty the child can move about more and may be exposed to primary infection or to reinfection. In this period of life, however, children are most protected against the vicissitudes of life, and are spared the stresses and debilitating influences of later life.

After adolescence, that is, after the age of 15, the death rate from tuberculosis rises very sharply. This is the most dangerous age so far as the individual's fate is concerned. In adult life, that is, after the middle twenties, the individual who has acquired tuberculosis has usually also acquired immunity, and the death rate is comparatively low. In old age, after the age of 60, the death rate again rises. It is surprising, however, that people who had tuberculosis all their lives can go on to the age of 70 or 75, coughing and expectorating tubercle bacilli, infecting their grandchildren, without any suspicion of what is the matter with them.

I remember seeing an entire family of five children with tuberculosis. Nobody could explain how they got it, because they were of an economic status that allowed of plenty of good food, airy sleeping quarters and other hygienic protection. Finally somebody called attention to grandpa's bronchitis. It had been hanging on a long time. Grandpa was 79 years old and his sputum was loaded with tubercle bacilli. The children used to sleep in grandpa's lap in the late afternoons, when mother and father were calling on the neighbors.

Wings of Youth

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, had a childhood romance with JACK COURTNEY, who attains sudden fame by dying the Pacific. To Perryville dies
BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's, receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport. . . .

YESTERDAY: When Sarah Anne finds that Judy and Jack have fallen in love, she pretends that she now cares for Bob, visiting him often at the hospital. Actually, her heart is breaking. Judy asks her to accompany them to a movie.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

MORE SWIFTLY than any gesture given, any word spoken, during this period in which Jack had come and gone again, the presence of the third person in the car sealed Sarah Anne's fate. It put her on the outside. It did not matter that the woman with Jack was his mother. Or maybe it mattered more.

She would think of that later. At the moment it was enough to know that there was no place in his car, in his life, for her. She was being very foolish, standing there in the moonlight, at the curb, in her silly blue and gold and white dirndl dress. She wished someone would say something. For if no one did, she would go thinking crazy sentences . . . reminding herself that Jack had come thousands of miles by air, and then, by taking a few steps and opening his arms to another girl, had gone so far away she never could reach him again.

Not that she wanted to. No woman wanted a man who had smiled his farewell. Not that! But how could one trust love, count on love?

"—and you'll excuse my forgetfulness and go with us another time, won't you, Sally Anne dear?" Judy was saying in a low voice, and Sarah Anne knew that some explanation of the presence of Mrs. Courtney must have been given. She had not heard it.

More words were said. She started back to the house. Then Jack opened his door and followed her. The walk curved halfway to the paragonic veranda, and there were rose bushes in a clump there, planted years before by a minister's wife who loved privacy. Tonight the fireflies were thick and the scent of the flowers, drooping with full blossoms, was heavy and warm.

At the rose bushes Jack caught up with Sarah Anne. His hands were firm on her arm. "Sarah Anne, what's the matter? Tell me." There was no denying the worry in the blue eyes, the deep concern in the low voice.

"It was Bernice, I guess," she answered, not even remembering much about Bernice.

"Sure, honey?"
He wanted to believe that. He didn't want to assume the sense of responsibility for her unhappiness. Yet he couldn't shift it to another if it was rightfully his. All his life he had been honest. All his life he would be that way.

"Very sure!" she lied again, so the blue eyes would clear and the frown that drew his brows together would go away.

"Good girl! And don't worry about her. Remember, if you need help, you'll always have me." He patted her hair, grinned, went around the bend.

Always have me. He was the one thing she did not have.

A mail plane was passing overhead and she stood on the lawn watching it. Jack, Bob, Judy could go in pursuit. But she, who wanted to escape entanglements more than any of them, must walk quietly the earth paths. She said a prayer, a wordless one, and went in the side door, so she would not have to answer questions as to her sudden decision to stay at home.

Corrinne called to her, from her own room. The younger girl, in step-ins and bra, was standing in front of a mirror, applying lipstick carefully.

"You should throw them away," she told her father.

"A party," she said. "A hurry-up affair. The whole class of '42's waiting downstairs, but I had to get a dress. But nothing's pressed. We're the same size, and oh, honey, if you'll let me have something—"

"I keep my dresses pressed . . . I can keep on pressing them . . . I can do little things . . . She must hunt a dress."

"How's the green one?" Sarah Anne had brought back a mass of green ruffles, cool as a lettuce leaf, and a silver ribbon to bind the waist, another for Corrinne's gold hair.

"It's heavenly! But—it's never been worn!" Corrinne's voice was filled with young amazement at such generosity.

"I bought it for the banquet the other night, then didn't go. Take it. Keep it." She had a sudden urge never again to see the frock.

"Mean it?" Ready to pull the dress over her head, Corrinne paused in astonishment.

"Silly! Of course I do."

Corrinne's next question was a surprise. "Is Jack engaged to Judy?"

"Oh, yes, but it's a secret for awhile." Was that her voice, that light, husky, impersonal thing which took words and put across meanings?

Corrinne's frank, clear eyes appraised her sister. "That flying guy was nuts about you. A goop! Even I knew it when I was about ten and thought it didn't matter who carried your books home as long as he didn't drop them. What happened?"

"He flew away." She was laughing now.

"Umhumm! After liking you in college. And he came back and you went around as though the mended carpets were pink woolly clouds you walked on. And now—here and Judy are doing a romantic rumba, aren't they?"

This was a little too much. Sarah Anne nodded. "They are, but I gave them to each other. With my blessing." She could tell the incident lightly, as though she hadn't been there at all.

Corrinne nodded. "Good work! Most girls would muddle along in hope the third party would be dismissed, or else they'd try something better than even Houdini knew, to win. You're honest. I wonder if I could do that much for Bob—"

"Oh, not your broken-legged Bob—and what hurdles you have been putting him through with that faked engagement!—but Bob Ransom. Ransom, Inc., steel. And millions. He's from Berryville, but you don't know him because he always went to private schools. Now he's at college 20 miles from where I am. But I'd love him if he had only one cent and it had a hole in the middle."

"I know." She was watching her sister's shining eyes. "He was out here with you the other night."

"He's always around. Say, this dress is a knockout! You're worthy of a Wallace Warfield trophy!" Then she sobered. "Sarah Anne, I'm frightened. If Jack could stop loving you, could Bob stop loving me? What can we do?"

"By the time he stops you'll have forgotten him," Sarah Anne answered. "Have fun."

She hoped that when Corrinne was a little older the man she loved would have money. It made life easier. But why should it need to be made easier? She stumbled over something in the dark hallway. Her father's best shoes, left there to be taken to the shoe shop. The soles were worn through. Why they had been soled three times now. And the leather on top was cracked. It wasn't fair!

He gave his life to others and he had holes in his shoes. She began to laugh, hysterically, and sat down on the top step. She was still there when the outer door closed behind the two spinsters who had been on the veranda earlier in the evening. Clutching the shoes, she went downstairs.

"You should throw them away," she told her father, holding them out.

He looked up from a book and laughed. "Plenty good. Just need soles."

"The shoemaker said the last time he couldn't fix them again. And shoemakers like to get work to do."

"I'm being paid up this month—three months back salary."

"With interest?"
"Without interest." He put down the book. "I'll buy two new pairs to celebrate. By the way, where's Jack? His mother told me last week—"

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another hot morning, so tarried briefly over coffee before taking out the dog and watching Ed Wallace exercise his ponies. Incidentally, Ed's fourth son now has started working in the bakery. Earl started this week and the first morning roused his father at 5 a. m. The next morning he was a little later and right now dad is doing the early morning calling. Bakers have early hours and when I was a kid they would not have pleased me at all.

Off to the post, there greeting Dr. Courtright and passing Tom Burke on the way back. Tom is busied with plans for his new home, another fine residence for the ville. There goes Clarence Wolf, the grocer. Clarence's family moved into the ville from Stoutsville when he was 10 years old bringing with them a saddle and harness horse known as Boosie. Homesickness struck the lad hard and every day or two he demanded that some member of the family take him to Stoutsville for a visit. He had no luck, so one morning the family found this note on the breakfast table: "Me and Boosie have gone to Stoutsville."

Last Winter I met M. E. Carothers and he told me about his bees and promised delivery of the first comb of honey taken from his hives this Summer. Yesterday, he delivered that same honey and it was tested and found delicious at the evening meal. Bill Radcliff knows something about bees, too. He was driving in from Williamsport when he struck a swarm of bees. His windshield was a mess and the inside of the car filled with bees. A lot of brake was applied and then those bees had the car all to themselves.

Noted a girl walking in the sunshine of Court street and she thought struck me that one truly is an old timer if he can remember when women could flag trains with such things as petticoats.

Received a special invitation to "The Garden of Roses" at Adelphi Sunday school Sunday morning at 10. Checked automobiles on North Court street and leaved that eight out of twenty far exceed the speed limit. And nowhere on that street did I catch glimpse of a patrolman. Probably we need another officer. And I would like to call the street department's attention to the fact that "Death Valley" in front of the Elks club is putting in appearance again although only lately repaired.

Again the town clock operates after the longest vacation in its lengthy history. Heard its bell booming in the early morning, so did investigate, finding Tom Brunner grooming the time-piece for its regular duties.

Eighty degrees of temperature at 8 in the morning. That's hot, whether or not anyone asks me. Too hot to work, anyway, so in the afternoon along with Bish Given and Earl Smith did wend my way to Dry Run, there to go wading and in search of very wily bass. Landed a pair, but both Bish and Earl outdid me in results. Comparatively cool there in the water and under great trees of shade. Home after sundown and straightaway to bed, being too tired even to investigate the refrigerator.

YOUNG MEN'S FEET

VACATION time — time to get out the old, worn volume of Kipling and read again the immortal poem of a man who really understood vacations.

"Now the Four-Way Lodge is opened, now the Hunting Winds are loose— Now the Smokes of Spring go up to clear the brain;

Now the Young Men's hearts are troubled for the whisper of the Trues, Now the Red Gods make their medicine again.

Who hath seen the beaver busied? Who hath watched the black-tail mating?

Who hath lain alone to hear the wild-geese cry?

Who hath worked the chosen water where the ouananiche is waiting, Or the sea-trout's jumping-crazy for the fly?"

And so on, through all the poetic catalogue of Summer lures, never matched in any vacation folder, till you end as you began with haunting refrain:

"And we go—go—go away from here! On the other side the world we're overdue.

Send the road is clear before you when the old Spring-fret comes o'er you,

And the Red Gods call for you."

They say Kipling isn't read much nowadays. Well, here's one poem, at least, written in America for Americans, that still has a kick in it for any he-man or she-woman with a normal love of outdoor life.

CORPORATIVE STATE

WITH so many types of government appearing in the world, there comes the "corporative state," advocated by two speakers at the National Catholic Social Action Congress in Cleveland. It would be a political organization of functional occupational groups. Partial examples are said to exist in the governments now arising in Ireland and Portugal.

Prof F. W. Grose of Notre Dame College described such a state as "not totalitarian, not Fascist or Communist." He urged progress toward such a pattern through "establishment of vigorous occupational groups, of which the cooperative and the professional societies are the best examples."

The first push toward this sort of thing in America, perhaps, came from Columbus Austin Bowsher, who a generation ago preached, in Cleveland and Philadelphia, a sort of United States of Industry. He would have abolished arbitrary political units and substituted economic and occupational "states" represented at Wash-

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another hot morning, so tarried briefly over coffee before taking out the dog and watching Ed Wallace exercise his ponies. Incidentally, Ed's fourth son now has started working in the bakery. Earl started this week and the first morning roused his father at 5 a. m. The next morning he was a little later and right now dad is doing the early morning calling. Bakers have early hours and when I was a kid they would not have pleased me at all.

Off to the post, there greeting Dr. Courtright and passing Tom Burke on the way back. Tom is busied with plans for his new home, another fine residence for the ville. There goes Clarence Wolf, the grocer. Clarence's family moved into the ville from Stoutsville when he was 10 years old bringing with them a saddle and harness horse known as Boosie. Homesickness struck the lad hard and every day or two he demanded that some member of the family take him to Stoutsville for a visit. He had no luck, so one morning the family found this note on the breakfast table: "Me and Boosie have gone to Stoutsville."

Last Winter I met M. E. Carothers and he told me about his bees and promised delivery of the first comb of honey taken from his hives this Summer. Yesterday, he delivered that same honey and it was tested and found delicious at the evening meal. Bill Radcliff knows something about bees, too. He was driving in from Williamsport when he struck a swarm of bees. His windshield was a mess and the inside of the car filled with bees. A lot of brake was applied and then those bees had the car all to themselves.

Noted a girl walking in the sunshine of Court street and the thought struck me that one truly is an old timer if he can remember when women could flag trains with such things as petticoats.

Received a special invitation to "The Garden of Roses" at Adelphi Sunday school Sunday morning at 10. Checked automobiles on North Court street and learned that eight out of twenty far exceed the speed limit. And nowhere on that street did I catch glimpse of a patrolman. Probably we need another officer. And I would like to call the street department's attention to the fact that "Death Valley" in front of the Elks club is putting in appearance again although only lately repaired.

Again the town clock operates after the longest vacation in its lengthy history. Heard its bell booming in the early morning, so did investigate, finding Tom Brunner grooming the time-piece for its regular duties.

Eighty degrees of temperature at 8 in the morning. That's hot, whether or not anyone asks me. Too hot to work, anyway, so in the afternoon along with Bish Given and Earl Smith did wend my way to Dry Run, there to go wading and in search of very wily bass. Landed a pair, but both Bish and Earl outdid me in results. Comparatively cool there in the water and under great trees of shade. Home after sundown and straightaway to bed, being too tired even to investigate the refrigerator.

CORRUPTION IN LOUISIANA

WASHINGTON — During recent weeks a congressional committee investigating P. W. A. has scrutinized the political views of small-fry workers debated whether W. P. A. should have produced the "Swing Mikado", and leveled the charge of Communism at W. P. A. white collarites.

Meanwhile it has completely ignored what is perhaps the worst evil of W. P. A., its use to build up powerful state political machines. Whether the members of the House committee ignored this phase of the investigation because some of their own political machines might be involved, is not known. But it is known that in certain States, such as Louisiana, the dominating political machine has deducted a percentage from the salaries of workers. It is in this way that the political steam-roller which replaced Huey Long now rules with even greater force than the Kingfish.

Furthermore, the W. P. A. investigating committee easily could have unearthed evidence that W. P. A. workers, and materials, were being used on the private property of state officials belonging to the political machines.

LOUISIANA AFFIDAVITS

Evidence regarding W. P. A. scandals in Louisiana recently has been turned over to the Department of Justice, and may become the basis of a drive to clean up state political machines similar to the drive Attorney General Murphy is waging to clean up the judiciary.

Among this evidence is an affidavit signed on June 2 by Joseph Alvin Barbay, a W. P. A. assistant foreman in Louisiana, who states that "during the past Summer, 1938, for a period of approximately two months, at the instruction of George Caldwell" (construction superintendent), he "was ordered to proceed to Covington and build a barn and a log house for Richard W. Leche (Governor of Louisiana), on his privately owned property. Later, for a period of approximately six weeks, he was ordered to again report to the Leche estate for work, where we converted his old stable into a corn barn. . . .

"We were transferred to a private construction of a building located on (Louisiana State) University property belonging to Goode Smith. (Thirty or forty Negroes were assigned to the work). Work progressed on this property until it was rumored that one of the W. P. A. inspectors was enroute to make an inspection trip, whereupon the workers, Negroes, and those assigned to this work who were in reality W. P. A. workers, were forced to flee, and to hide in fear that they would be seen by the W. P. A. Inspector.

"Jimmy Marshall, who was the W. P. A. Foreman, instructed these men to 'get away from this building and beat it back to the Coliseum, the inspectors are coming, and don't let them see you.'"

"Ages" in "Life" of Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AT DIFFERENT periods of the life span there are striking differences in the nature of tuberculosis, both as to the symptoms and the outlook for life, and also to the danger to other human beings who might come into contact with the person who has the disease.

Tuberculosis, according to modern ideas, lasts a lifetime, is almost always acquired in infancy and is entirely different in infancy than it is in adult life. In infancy it is located mostly in the lymphatic nodes of the body and not until maturity does it involve the lungs. Tuberculosis of the bones is almost entirely a disease of infancy and childhood.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Infected at Home

Since infants cannot move about to court infection, they are ordinarily infected at home, and are exposed to heavy and continued infection or none at all. In other words, infants get tuberculosis from some member of the household—parent, grandparent, brother or sister.

Food and nutrition play an important part in the outlook of infantile tuberculosis. In other words, of two infants, both of which are exposed to infection, the one who lives in a household where there is an abundance of good food is more liable to overcome the infection.

From the second to the fifth year of life children develop a considerable immunity to tuberculosis; few cases of active clinical tuberculosis can be detected at this period. Between five years of age and puberty the child can move about more and may be exposed to primary infection or to reinfection. In this period of life, however, children are most protected against the vicissitudes of life, and are spared the stresses and debilitating influences of later life.

After adolescence, that is, after the age of 15, the death rate from tuberculosis rises very sharply. This is the most dangerous age so far as the individual's fate is concerned.

In adult life, that is, after the middle twenties, the individual who has acquired tuberculosis has usually also acquired immunity, and the death rate is comparatively low. In old age, after the age of 60, the death rate again rises. It is surprising, however, that people who had tuberculosis all their lives can go on to the age of 70 or 75, coughing and expectorating tubercle bacilli, infecting their grandchildren, without any suspicion of what is the matter with them.

I remember seeing an entire family of five children with tuberculosis. Nobody could explain how they got it, because they were of an economic status that allowed of plenty of good food, airy sleeping quarters and other hygienic protection. Finally somebody called attention to grandpa's bronchitis. It had been hanging on a long time. Grandpa was 79 years old and his sputum was loaded with tubercle bacilli. The children used to sleep in grandpa's lap in the late afternoons, when mother and father were calling on the neighbors.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

MORE SWIFTLY than any gesture given, any word spoken, during this period in which Jack had come and gone again, the presence of the third person in the car sealed Sarah Anne's fate. It put her on the outside. It did not matter that the woman with Jack was his mother. Or maybe it mattered more.

She would think of that later. At the moment it was enough to know that there was no place in his car, in his life, for her. She was being very foolish, standing there in the moonlight, at the curb, in her silly blue and gold and white dirndl dress. She wished someone would say something. For if no one did, she would go thinking crazy sentences . . . reminding herself that Jack had come thousands of miles by air, and then, by taking a few steps and opening his arms to another girl, had gone so far away she never could reach him again.

Not that she wanted to. No woman wanted a man who had smiled his farewell. Not that! But how could one trust love, count on love?

"and you'll excuse my forgetfulness and go with us another time, won't you, Sally Anne dear?" Judy was saying in a low voice, and Sarah Anne knew that some explanation of the presence of Mrs. Chalmers must have been given. She had not heard it.

More words were said. She started back to the house. Then Jack opened his door and followed her. The walk curved halfway to the parsonage veranda, and there were rose bushes in a clump there, planted years before by a minister's wife who loved privacy. Tonight the fireflies were thick and the scent of the flowers, drooping with full blossoms, was heavy and warm.

At the rose bushes Jack caught up with Sarah Anne. His hands were firm on her arm. "Sarah Anne, what's the matter? Tell me."

There was no denying the worry in the blue eyes, the deep concern in the low voice.

"It was Bernice, I guess," she answered, not even remembering much about Bernice.

"Sure, honey?"

He wanted to believe that. He didn't want to assume the sense of responsibility for her unhappiness. Yet he couldn't shift it to another if it was rightfully his. All his life he had been honest. All his life he would be that way.

"Very sure!" she lied again, so the blue eyes would clear and the frown that drew his brows together would go away.

"Good girl! And don't worry about her. Remember, if you need help, you'll always have me." He patted her head, grinned, went around the bend.

Always have me. He was the one thing she did not have.

A mail plane was passing overhead and she stood on the lawn watching it. Jack, Bob, Judy could go in pursuit. But she, who wanted to escape entanglements more than any of them, must walk quietly the earth paths. She said a prayer, a wordless one, and went in the side door, so she would not have to answer questions as to her sudden decision to stay at home.

Corrinne called to her, from her own room. The younger girl, in step-ins and bra, was standing in front of a mirror, applying lipstick carefully.

"A party," she said. "A hurry-up affair. The whole class of '42's waiting downstairs, but I had to get a dress. But nothing's pressed. We're the same size, and oh, honey, if you'll let me have something—"

"I keep my dresses pressed . . . I can keep on pressing them . . . I can do little things . . ."

"How's the green one?" Sarah Anne had brought back a mass of green ruffles, cool as a lettuce leaf, and a silver ribbon to bind the waist, another for Corrinne's gold hair.

"It's heavenly! But—it's never been worn!" Corrinne's voice was filled with young amazement at such generosity.

"I bought it for the banquet the other night, then didn't go. Take it. Keep it." She had a sudden urge never again to see the frock.

"Mean it?" Ready to pull the dress over her head, Corrinne paused in astonishment.

"Silly! Of course I do."

Corrinne's next question was a surprise. "Is Jack engaged to Judy?"

"Oh, yes, but it's a secret for awhile." Was that her voice, that light, husky, impersonal thing which took words and put across meanings?

Corrinne's frank, clear eyes appraised her sister. "That flying guy was nuts about you. A goop! Even I knew it when I was about ten and thought it didn't matter who carried your books home as long as he didn't drop them. What happened?"

"He flew away." She was laughing now.

"Umhummm! After liking you in college. And he came back and you went around as though the mended carpets were pink woolly clouds you walked on. And now—he and Judy are doing a romantic rumba, aren't they?"

This was a little too much. Sarah Anne nodded. "They are, but I gave them to each other. With my blessing." She could tell the incident lightly, as though she hadn't been there at all.

Corrinne nodded. "Good work! Most girls would muddle along in hope the third party would be dismissed, or else they'd try something better than even Houdini knew, to win. You're honest. I wonder if I could do that much for Bob?"

"Oh, not your broken-legged Bob—and what hurdles you have been putting him through with that faked engagement!—but Bob Ransom. Ransom, Inc., steel. And millions. He's from Berryville, but you don't know him because he always went to private schools. Now he's at college 20 miles from where I am. But I'd love him if he had only one cent and it had a hole in the middle."

"I know." She was watching her sister's shining eyes. "He was out here with you the other night."

"He's always around. Say, this dress is a knockout! You're worthy of a Wallace Warfield trophy!" Then she sobbed. "Sarah Anne, I'm frightened. If Jack could stop loving you, could Bob stop loving me? What can we do?"

"By the time he stops you'll have forgotten him," Sarah Anne answered. "Have fun."

She hoped that when Corrinne was a little older the man she loved would have money. It made life easier. But why should it need to be made easier? She stumbled over something in the dark hallway. Her father's best shoes, left there to be taken to the shoe shop. The soles were worn through. Why, they had been soled three times now. And the leather on top was cracked. It wasn't fair!

He gave his life to others and he had holes in his shoes. She began to laugh, hysterically, and sat down on the top step. She was still there when the outer door closed behind the two spinsters who had been on the veranda earlier in the evening. Clutching the shoes, she went downstairs.

"You should throw them away," she told her father, holding them out.

He looked up from a book and laughed. "Plenty good. Just need soles."

"The shoemaker said the last time he couldn't fix them again. And shoemakers like to get work to do."

"I'm being paid up this month—three months back salary."

"With interest?"

"Without interest." He put down the book. "I'll buy two new pairs to celebrate. By the way, where's Jack?" His mother told me last week—"

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The leftover pieces of asparagus from last night's dinner may be cut into half-inch pieces and added to the eggs while they are being scrambled for breakfast or lunch.

A little steamer or saucepan which fits into the top of the tea kettle is an excellent place to keep small quantities of things warm for awhile.

Male ostrich feathers are white with fine markings; female, white tinged irregularly with brown.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The opening scene in "The Lady's from Kentucky," George Raft's new picture with Ellen Drew, which comes Sunday to the Cliftona theatre, represents a personal experience in the life of the popular screen actor.

As a young man in Hell's Kitchen, New York, Raft once donated blood for a transfusion performed upon a friend, Jimmy Flatley, who had been seriously hurt in a boat crash on the East River.

In the first scene of the picture, he lies on a hospital guernsey, supposedly selling blood for a patient he had never seen before, in order to get money to bet on a horse race.

And on the set, watching, was Flatley, who works as an extra in the picture.

In the cast are Hugh Herbert and Zazu Pitts, with Alexander Hall directing for Producer Jeff Lazarus.

Royal Neighbors Plan
For District Session

June 30 Event To Honor Official;
Team Appears

Plans were completed for the district convention of the Royal Neighbors at the meeting Friday in the Modern Woodmen hall, E. Main street. The convention will honor Mrs. Eliza J. Kelly, Chillicothe, district deputy, and will be in the Knights of Pythias hall Friday, June 30. The convention dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the United Brethren community house by the Shining Light Bible class of the church. The drill team of the Circleville organization will appear for the first time in new white uniform dresses. Mrs. Rose Wolfe heads the team of 14 members. Mrs. Nellie Murray, state supervisor, and many other state and district officers will attend the convention.

Merry-Makers' Club
Responding to an invitation from Mrs. Cyril Palm of Baltimore, 25 members and three guests of the Merry-Makers' Sewing club of the Order of the Eastern Star, motored to her home Friday afternoon. After an hour of informal visiting and sewing, a cooperative dinner was served.

A basket of colorful garden flowers centered the long table where the guests were served in the dining room, small tables being placed in the other rooms of the home.

Mrs. William Bowman will entertain the club members in two weeks at the Pickaway Country Club.

D. A. R. Luncheon
Miss Rosalie R. Haddock of 64, 14th avenue, Columbus, will be guest speaker at the Tuesday luncheon of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Pickaway Country Club. ## Obituary

Mrs. Merle Margaret Wilson was born at Ogden, Utah, Nov. 26, 1920, daughter of James L. and Mabel R. Barker and departed from this life June 11, 1939, aged 18 years 6 months and 15 days.

She leaves to mourn her death, her husband, Mr. Kenneth Wilson, her father and mother, Mr. James L. and Mabel R. Barker and two brothers, Wayne L. Barker and Floyd Ruben Barker of Bell, California.

She also leaves many friends and relatives, who will miss her loving face and tender deeds.

I cannot say, and I will not say that she is dead—she is just away!

With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand, She has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be, since she lingers along, coming and going, as if she were—O you, who the wildest yearn For an old-time step and the glad return—

Think of her faring on as dear In the love of There as the love of Here; Think of her as the same. I say: She is not dead—she is just away!

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all those who helped in any way to make the hours of sickness more comfortable and the hours of bereavement brighter. And also to thank those who gave flowers, spoke kind words, the singers the undertaker and minister.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Barker and family, Mr. Kenneth Wilson, Mrs. Effie Wilson and family.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

MORE PRIVATE HOMES

Another affidavit, signed by Robert L. O'Neil on June 4, states that for two years he was concrete foreman with the Louisiana State University, and that "during the Spring of 1937, two houses were fabricated inside the Coliseum . . . that labor for this work was furnished by W. P. A. . . . and that to his full knowledge all of the material was purchased by the W. P. A."

"That when the said two houses were completely constructed . . . they were loaded on Louisiana State University trucks by W. P. A. labor; that they were transported by the said trucks to the farm of Richard W. Leche, privately owned, near Covington, La., and that there they were unloaded."

"That this was done with the full knowledge and approval of the Engineer, Mr. Mongett, employed by the W. P. A. . . ."

"That he is familiar with the construction of the home of E. N. Jackson, Business Manager of Louisiana State University, in that I, personally, was employed on his house for some two or three weeks, and that all of the said workers and carpenters were paid from the same funds. . . ."

"That to my knowledge and belief, quite a bit of material such as sand, gravel, cement, lumber, and some two or three hundred feet of concrete storm sewer pipe were used in building of the said house, which said materials belonged to the W. P. A., and that on one occasion, George Caldwell (construction superintendent) came down to the said house . . . while I was setting and laying the sewer pipe, and exclaimed to me, 'For God's Sake, O'Neil, hurry and get that pipe covered up, before Jackson has a fit about all this stealing.'"

An affidavit by Hicks Batts, a truck driver, tells how he moved a playhouse with 20 W. P. A. workers for David Ellison, Attorney General of Louisiana.

Various other affidavits, too numerous to detail, tell of materials hauled to the private properties of Governor Leche and members of his political machine.

RAISING POLITICAL FUNDS

Others indicate the manner in which the Leche machine raises its funds, namely by deducting five percent from all state salaries. Many Louisianians claim this also affects W. P. A. workers, despite an Act of Congress prohibiting the collection of money from workers connected with projects receiving federal funds.

One affidavit signed by A. L. Kraemer on June 5 states that he was a foreman and time-keeper and "was forced, under threat of discharge and dismissal, to comply with the requirement that he contribute five percent of his salary back to officials higher in authority; and that Edward F. Woods, of New Orleans, is the party to whom he was forced to turn over . . . his five percent salary contribution."

An affidavit by Chester E. Martin states that "he was formerly employed by the Louisiana Highway Commission; that he was discharged upon protesting forced contributions from his salary." During this time he said

Obituary

Mrs. Merle Margaret Wilson was born at Ogden, Utah, Nov. 26, 1920, daughter of James L. and Mabel R. Barker and departed from this life June 11, 1939, aged 18 years 6 months and 15 days.

She leaves to mourn her death, her husband, Mr. Kenneth Wilson, her father and mother, Mr. James L. and Mabel R. Barker and two brothers, Wayne L. Barker and Floyd Ruben Barker of Bell, California.

She also leaves many friends and relatives, who will miss her loving face and tender deeds.

I cannot say, and I will not say that she is dead,—She is just away!—with a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand.

She has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair it needs must be, since she lingers on, smiling, waiting, ready to go.

And you—O you, who the wildest yearn for the old-time step and the glad return,—

Think of her faring on as dear In the love of There as the love of Here;

Think of her as the same, I say; She is not dead—she is just away!

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all those who helped in any way to make the hours of sickness more comfortable and the hours of bereavement brighter. And also to thank those who gave flowers, spoke kind words, the singers the undertaker and minister.

MORE PRIVATE HOMES

Another affidavit, signed by Robert L. O'Neil on June 4, states that for two years he was concrete foreman with the Louisiana State University, and that "during the Spring of 1937, two houses were fabricated inside the Coliseum . . . that labor for this work was furnished by W. P. A. . . . and that to his full knowledge all of the material was purchased by the W. P. A."

"That when the said two houses were completely constructed . . . they were loaded on Louisiana State University trucks by W. P. A. labor; that they were transported by the said trucks to the farm of Richard W. Leche, privately owned, near Covington, La., and that there they were unloaded."

"That this was done with the full knowledge and approval of the Engineer, Mr. Mongett, employed by the W. P. A. . . ."

"That he is familiar with the construction of the home of E. N. Jackson, Business Manager of Louisiana State University, in that I, personally, was employed on his house for some two or three weeks, and that all of the said workers and carpenters were paid from the same funds. . . ."

"That to my knowledge and belief, quite a bit of material such as sand, gravel, cement, lumber, and some two or three hundred feet of concrete storm sewer pipe were used in building of the said house, which said materials belonged to the W. P. A., and that on one occasion, George Caldwell (construction superintendent) came down to the said house . . . while I was setting and laying the sewer pipe, and exclaimed to me, 'For God's Sake, O'Neil, hurry and get that pipe covered up, before Jackson has a fit about all this stealing.'"

An affidavit by Hicks Batts, a truck driver, tells how he moved a playhouse with 20 W. P. A. workers for David Ellison, Attorney General of Louisiana.

Various other affidavits, too numerous to detail, tell of materials hauled to the private properties of Governor Leche and members of his political machine.

RAISING POLITICAL FUNDS

Others indicate the manner in which the Leche machine raises its funds, namely by deducting five percent from all state salaries. Many Louisianians claim this also affects W. P. A. workers, despite an Act of Congress prohibiting the collection of money from workers connected with projects receiving federal funds. Virtually all Louisiana projects receive part state, part federal funds.

One affidavit signed by A. L. Kraemer on June 5 states that he was a foreman and timekeeper and "was forced, under threat of discharge and dismissal, to comply with the requirement that he contribute five percent of his salary back to officials higher in authority; and that Edward F. Woods, of New Orleans, is the party to whom he was forced to turn over . . . his five percent salary contribution."

An affidavit by Chester E. Martin states that "he was formerly employed by the Louisiana Highway Commission; that he was discharged upon protesting forced contributions from his salary." During this time he said he worked on four federal projects.

Martin claimed that the chief method of contribution was by subscription to Governor Leche's paper, The Daily Progress, largely owned by him.

Pictures published in The New Orleans States last week showing a state-owned truck unloading building materials on private property has brought a statement from Governor Leche that he will investigate the matter. However, he himself is to conduct the investigation, and it will be interesting to watch the extent to which he probes the allegations that W. P. A. labor and materials were used on his own property.

WHEAT ACREAGE ALLOTMENT IN STATE TO BE INCREASED FOR NEXT YEAR

COUNTY FIGURE TO BE DECIDED IN TWO WEEKS

Boost Made Possible After Report That Supply Will Be Under Prediction

An increase of 11 percent in Ohio's 1940 wheat acreage allotment under the A. A. A. farm program over the 1939 allotment was announced Saturday by the Ohio Agricultural Conservation Committee. The 1940 allotment was set at 1,838,127 acres, an increase of 183,290 acres as compared with 1939.

"The increase has been made because of a reduction in the prospective wheat supplies for 1939 throughout the nation," State Chairman Elmer F. Kruse pointed out. "The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 specifies that the national acreage allotment is to be determined each year on the basis of the prospective crop for the current year and the carryover of wheat in the United States in relation to prospective domestic, export, and reserve requirements," he said.

The state allotment will be apportioned among Ohio counties within the next two weeks, and then to individual farmers within the counties according to past history and to the productivity for the farm. Allotments are expected to reach farmers several months earlier than in 1938.

Counties Await Report Pickaway county A. A. A. officials said Saturday that they expected the local allotment to be announced within the next week or two.

All counties in the state will show an increase, but the increase will not be the same in each county. Provisions of the Act require that the 1940 allotment be distributed among the counties on the basis of the acreage seeded and the acreage diverted to other crops from 1929 to 1938 inclusive, after adjustments for abnormal weather conditions and for trends in acreage during that period.

"The 1939 wheat program demonstrates the effectiveness of planned production," Chairman Kruse declared. "Income from wheat on the 1939 harvest for Ohio producers should be considerably larger than in the past years due to an increased market price for wheat and to the wheat loan program."

imposed by the house and bitterly opposed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Outstanding among the provisions of the big bill distasteful to the President was that placing W. P. A. in the hands of a three man board instead of the one administrator who now is in charge. Another blow was struck at the administration in the house legislation when sections were approved ending the Federal Theatre projects as of June 30. Still another amendment adopted drastically limited the cost of federal projects and compelled "rotation" of all W. P. A. labor excepting that performed by persons 45 years of age and over, and World War veterans.

Outstanding concession granted the President in the long session which brought passage of the bill 373 to 21, was an increase in the committee approved $81,000,000 for the National Youth Administration to $100,000,000—still $23,000,000 short of the money requested but sufficient to meet the plea of N. Y. A. Administrator Aubrey Wilson for an additional amount to give assistance to 200,000 youths.

him to "clean up the mess." W. F. Amrine, state superintendent of corrections, then was sent to the institution to help Woodard correct conditions. On March 2, Sherwood suspended the prison official for 30 days for "disciplinary purposes." Amrine was appointed acting warden.

Further investigation resulted in the filing of a removal order containing 22 specific charges of incompetency, inefficiency, insubordination, neglect of duty, failure of good behaviors and misfeasance in office.

Allegations Sensational

Most sensational were the allegations that Woodard permitted extensive trafficking in the sale of narcotics, whiskey and marijuana cigarettes and that he showed favoritism to prisoners of wealth and political standing. Inmates to whom special favors reportedly were granted were Kenyon V. Painter and C. Sterling Smith former Cleveland bankers, and Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, Toledo racketeer.

FRENCH GIVE UP PHENIX, 71 MEN

fidence that my husband and his crew will save the submarine."

But the government of Cochinchina shared the view of Marine officials in Paris. "After more than 48 hours of fruitless search," said a bulletin issued at Saigon, "loss of the Phenix and its crew is certain."

France, whose government only a few days ago ordered four of the diving bells used with partial success in the sinking of the Squalus off New Hampshire, was deep in mourning.

Functions Called Off

President Albert Lebrun cancelled a dinner scheduled today for the Sultan of Morocco, and it was reported that Cesar Campinchi, minister of marine, called off his participation in a fete at Havre Sunday marking the opening of French Navy Week.

The appearance of oil on the surface of Cam-Rahn bay, plus the depth of the water where the mountains drop sharply down on the east coast of Indo-China, led to the fear that the hull of the 2,000-ton submarine crushed like an eggshell.

The Phenix carried escape equipment similar to the Davis apparatus used on British submarines and the "Momsen lung" employed on American submarines, but the water was too deep to permit anyone to rise alive.

Moreover, in this out-of-the-way spot, there were few boats that could be used for salvage purposes.

The French boat was older than the Squalus or the Thetis, the British submarine lost recently. She was launched in 1930. Her length was 302.5 feet, compared to 292 for the Squalus.

Toll Reaches 277

Loss of her 71 men brings the submarine death toll this year to 277. Other disasters were:

Feb. 2—Japanese submarine I-63, 400 miles southwest of Tokyo, lost 81.

May 23—American submarine Squalus, off New Hampshire, lost 26.

June 1—British submarine Thetis, in Liverpool Bay, lost 99—the largest number of dead in the history of submarine catastrophes.

Vice-Admiral Jean Decoux, commander-in-chief of the French navy in the Far East, was named head of the commission of inquiry. All festivals in connection with Navy Week were cancelled.

RUNAWAY, 17, HELD

Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver drove to the Pickway Inn on Route 23 in the northern part of the county at 2 a. m. Saturday to apprehend Joseph Saba, 17, of Toledo, and hold him for his parents. The deputy sheriff said the youth ran away from home.

CLYDE WEAVER CITED

Clyde Weaver, 38, of Corwin street, posted $50 bond in police court Saturday to report at 7:30 p. m. on a charge of participating in the "numbers" game.

Film Programs Offer Pleasant Diversion

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Is it too soon to start spraying my roses?

ANSWER: Absolutely not. In fact, you should have started about 6 weeks ago for the best control. As it is, I suggest you start immediately dusting or spraying them at least once a week and after each rain. If you will ask your local county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on garden roses, it will give you complete recommendations.

QUESTION: I am looking for a choice evergreen to use in my rock garden and a friend suggests I use a Swiss stone pine. What can you tell me about it?

ANSWER: The Swiss stone pine is one of the finest of our evergreens. It is very slow growing, making an erect, compact growth, and although it will eventually get up to be a fair size, it is so slow growing that I doubt if you will ever see it over 8 or 10 feet in height.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the Ginkgo or maidenhair tree?

ANSWER: The maidenhair tree is one of the most satisfactory of all trees for street or lawn planting. Belonging to a very ancient group of plants, it and its relatives flourished thousands of years ago during the period when our present coal deposits were growing as forests. Since then all of its relatives have died and it is the only survivor. An apparently, all the pests that ever bothered it also have died. Be sure to plant a male tree since the female tree will in due course of time produce fruits which, although resembling dates, are terrifically malodorous.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the climbing hydrangea?

ANSWER: The climbing hydrangea is a very satisfactory vine. It will grow in sun or shade and cling to stone, wood or brick, producing in midsummer flowers somewhat similar to our native or wild hydrangea. Since it is a little difficult to get established, I would suggest you plant it in the Spring.

QUESTION: I have a tulip tree growing in my yard for three or four years and yet there is no sign of any bloom on it. How long will it take it to bloom?

ANSWER: The tulip tree usually takes 15 or 20 years before it blooms, although occasionally it may bloom at a younger age. Incidentally, I saw the magnificent tulip tree in the state park in Hocking County in full bloom on Memorial Day. Some day when you are down that way visit Rock House State Park. As you stand on the top of the cliff above Rock House you look out into the lower branches of the magnificent tree which must be 125 feet high.

QUESTION: When is the proper time to transplant peonies and lily-of-the-valley?

ANSWER: I would recommend that lily-of-the-valley be transplanted immediately since this will give them a chance to become bloom next Spring. Incidentally, every patch of lily-of-the-valley will do much better transplanted every two or three years, thoroughly diving them when transplanting them.

Peonies should not be transplanted until this fall. Even though you take the roots with them, you find they will not really start blooming real well for two or three years.

QUESTION: I would like to plant one or two specimen evergreens around my yard and it is a very large yard with a half-acre lawn. What evergreens would you recommend?

ANSWER: Among the pines I would recommend the Scotch, Red, Austrian, and Himalayan. Among the spruce, I believe you will find the Serbian is the finest of all, and in the southern half of the state where you live the Oriental spruce. The silver or Concolor fir is the finest of the firs, although you might be interested in trying the Nordmann and the Veitch. I would also like to suggest for your con-

U. S. Destroyer Due

In addition to the three British warships, the United States yacht-like destroyer Isabel is due here Tuesday. But her visit was planned before the blockade was declared. Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, will arrive Monday.

The British destroyer Decoy is a 1357-ton vessel, and the Lowestoft, 990 tons. The Medway, capable of carrying a large cargo of food, displaces 14,650 tons.

SABOTAGE EYED BY GOVERNMENT IN 'SUB' LOSSES

WASHINGTON, June 17—The possibility that an organized sabotage campaign is being carried on against the submarine flotillas of Great Britain was studied soberly at the navy department today.

Suspicion on the part of the navy high command was aroused when the French submersible, Phenix, failed to rise after a test dive and thus became the third sub to meet disaster in the same fashion within 24 days, with a total death toll of 188 men.

The disasters which overtook first the U. S. submarine Squalus, and then the British Thetis, with respective loss of 26 and 99, respectively, were viewed by the navy high command as purely accidental, although some department officials were skeptical when the Thetis failed to rise after a test dive on June 2, just 10 days after the Squalus failed to come to the surface after a similar maneuver.

But the Phenix catastrophe, in which 71 lost their lives, changed the picture. Statistics were studied and showed that in the course of thousands of practice dives the U. S. had lost no submarine in 12 years; the British and French none in five years.

Intelligence officers decided to exchange information with the British and French as soon as the Squalus investigation is completed. They admitted that the possibility that all three tragedies were caused by sabotage was being considered.

Sheep Owners Invited To Parasite Demonstration

Pickaway county sheep owners may learn more about protecting their flocks against parasites on Wednesday, June 21, by attending demonstrations announced Saturday by C. E. Blakeslee, assistant county extension agent.

L. K. Bear, extension specialist in sheep husbandry at Ohio State university, will be in charge of two farm flock demonstrations on the control of lice and ticks and stomach, tape and round worms of sheep.

Methods of controlling internal parasites by both the liquid drench and worm capsule will be shown. Farmers will be able to secure information so they may treat their own flocks against parasites. According to Mr. Bear, treating of sheep at monthly intervals and rotation of pastures are two important steps in good sheep practice.

External parasite control will be demonstrated by James Cushing, of Fayetteville, with portable equipment. Mr. Cushing will show how lice and ticks may be controlled thus resulting in better wool and mutton production. He has worked in Brown, Highland and Madison counties and has developed much interest in external parasite control.

The first demonstration will be held at 10 a. m. at the Jane D. Bell farm on the Walnut creek pike two and a half miles east of the intersection of the road with U. S. Route 23.

The farm of Dewey Downs, in Darby township, is the location for a demonstration at 2 p. m. This farm is one half mile east of the Derby-Darbyville road.

The farm is one mile south and east of Derby. It is five miles north of Darbyville, then east a half mile.

Mr. Blakeslee estimates Pickaway county farmers own about 18,000 sheep. Large crowds are expected to attend the demonstrations.

SCIOTO BOARD STUDIES BIDS ON TRANSPORTATION

The Scioto township board of education will consider bids at 8 p. m., June 26, on two transportation systems for school children.

Bids will be received for furnishing and operating nine, 36 to 42 passenger buses, privately owned. The board will receive bids also from dealers for furnishing the bus equipment to the board. A decision will then be reached on the method to be used for the next term. At present all buses used at the school are privately owned.

C. D. Hutchins, supervisor of transportation of the State Department of Education, met with the board, Friday night, to discuss transportation.

Feeding trials at Beltsville, Maryland, indicate that lambs can be fattened on soybeans without producing soft fat.

WHEAT ACREAGE ALLOTMENT IN STATE TO BE INCREASED FOR NEXT YEAR

COUNTY FIGURE TO BE DECIDED IN TWO WEEKS

Boost Made Possible After Report That Supply Will Be Under Prediction

An increase of 11 percent in Ohio's 1940 wheat acreage allotment under the A. A. A. farm program was announced Saturday by the Ohio Agricultural Conservation Committee. The 1940 allotment was set at 1,838,127 acres, an increase of 183,290 acres as compared with 1939.

"The increase has been made because of a reduction in the prospective wheat supplies for 1939 throughout the nation," State Chairman Elmer F. Kruse pointed out. "The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 specifies that the national acreage allotment is to be determined each year on the basis of the prospective crop for the current year and the carryover of wheat in the United States in relation to prospective domestic, export, and reserve requirements," he said.

The state allotment will be apportioned among Ohio counties within the next two weeks, and then to individual farmers within the counties according to past history and to the productivity for the farm. Allotments are expected to reach farmers several months earlier than in 1938.

Counties Await Report
Pickaway county A. A. A. officials said Saturday that they expected the local allotment to be announced within the next week or two.

All counties in the state will show an increase, but the increase will not be the same in each county. Provisions of the Act require that the 1940 allotment be distributed among the counties on the basis of the acreage seeded and the acreage diverted to other crops from 1929 to 1938 inclusive, after adjustments for abnormal weather conditions and for trends in acreage during that period.

"The 1939 wheat program demonstrates the effectiveness of planned production," Chairman Kruse declared. "Income from wheat on the 1939 harvest for Ohio producers should be considerably larger than in the past years due to an increased market price for wheat and to the wheat loan program."

imposed by the house and bitterly opposed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Outstanding among the provisions of the big bill distasteful to the President was that placing W. P. A. in the hands of a three man board instead of the one administrator who now is in charge. Another blow was struck at the administration in the house legislation when sections were approved ending the Federal Theatre projects as of June 30. Still another amendment adopted drastically limited the cost of federal projects and compelled "rotation" of all W. P. A. labor excepting that performed by persons 45 years of age and over, and World War veterans.

Outstanding concession granted the President in the long session which brought passage of the bill 373 to 21, was an increase in the committee approved $51,000,000 for the National Youth Administration to $100,000,000—still $23,000,000 short of the money requested but sufficient to meet the plea of N. Y. A. Administrator Aubrey Williams for an additional amount to give assistance to 200,000 youths.

him to "clean up the mess." W. F. Amrine, state superintendent of corrections, then was sent to the institution to help Woodard correct conditions. On March 2, Sherwood suspended the prison official for 30 days for "disciplinary purposes." Amrine was appointed acting warden.

Further investigation resulted in the filing of a removal order containing 22 specific charges of incompetency, inefficiency, insubordination, neglect of duty, failure of good behaviors and misfeasance in office.

Allegations Sensational
Most sensational were the allegations that Woodard permitted extensive trafficking in the sale of narcotics, whisky and marijuana cigarettes and that he showed favoritism to prisoners of wealth and political standing. Inmates to whom special favors reportedly were granted were Kenyon V. Painter and C. Sterling Smith former Cleveland bankers, and Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, Toledo racketeer.

fidence that my husband and his crew will save the submarine." But the government of Cochinchina shared the view of Marine officials in Paris. "After more than 48 hours of fruitless search," said a bulletin issued at Saigon, "loss of the Phenix and its crew is certain."

France, whose government only a few days ago ordered four of the diving bells used with partial success in the sinking of the Squalus off New Hampshire, was deep in mourning.

Functions Called Off
President Albert Lebrun cancelled a dinner scheduled today for the Sultan of Morocco, and it was reported that Cesar Campinchi, minister of marine, called off his participation in a fete at Havre Sunday marking the opening of French Navy Week.

The appearance of oil on the surface of Cam-Rahn bay, plus the depth of the water where the mountains drop sharply down on the east coast of Indo-China, led to the fear that the hull of the 2,000-ton submarine crushed like an eggshell.

The Phenix carried escape equipment similar to the Davis apparatus used on British submarines and the "Momsen lung" employed on American submarines, but the water was too deep to permit anyone to rise alive.

Moreover, in this out-of-the-way spot, there were few boats that could be used for salvage purposes.

The French boat was older than the Squalus or the Thetis, the British submarine lost recently. She was launched in 1930. Her length was 302.5 feet, compared to 292 for the Squalus.

Toll Reaches 277

Loss of her 71 men brings the submarine death toll this year to 277. Other disasters were:

Feb. 2—Japanese submarine I-63, 400 miles southwest of Tokyo, lost 81.

May 23—American submarine Squalus, off New Hampshire, lost 26.

June 1—British submarine Thetis, in Liverpool Bay, lost 99—the largest number of dead in the history of submarine catastrophes.

Vice-Admiral Jean Decoux, commander-in-chief of the French navy in the Far East, was named head of the commission of inquiry. All festivals in connection with Navy Week were cancelled.

RUNAWAY, 17, HELD

Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver drove to the Pickway Inn on Route 23 in the northern part of the county at 2 a. m. Saturday to apprehend Joseph Saba, 17, of Toledo, and hold him for his parents. The deputy sheriff said the youth ran away from home.

CLYDE WEAVER CITED

Clyde Weaver, 38, of Corwin street, posted $50 bond in police court Saturday to report at 7:30 p. m. on a charge of participating in the "numbers" game.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Is it too soon to start spraying my roses?
ANSWER: Absolutely not. In fact, you should have started about 6 weeks ago for the best control. As it is, I suggest you start immediately dusting or spraying them at least once a week and after each rain. If you will ask your local county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on garden roses, it will give you complete recommendations.

QUESTION: I am looking for a choice evergreen to use in my rock garden and a friend suggests I use a Swiss stone pine. What can you tell me about it?

ANSWER: The Swiss stone pine is one of the finest of our evergreens. It is very slow growing, making an erect, compact growth, and although it will eventually get up to be a fair size, it is so slow growing that I doubt if you will ever see it over 8 or 10 feet in height.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the Ginkgo or maidenhair tree?

ANSWER: The maidenhair tree is one of the most satisfactory of all trees for street or lawn planting. Belonging to a very ancient group of plants, it and its relatives flourished thousands of years ago during the period when our present coal deposits were growing as forests. Since then all of its relatives have died and it is the only survivor. An apparently, all the pests that ever bothered it also have died. Be sure to plant a male tree since the female tree will in due course of time produce fruits which, although resembling dates, are terrifically malodorous.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the climbing hydrangea?
ANSWER: The climbing hydrangea is a very satisfactory vine. It will grow in sun or shade and cling to stone, wood or brick, producing in midsummer flowers somewhat similar to our native or wild hydrangea. Since it is a little difficult to get established, I would suggest you plant it in the Spring.

QUESTION: I have a tulip tree growing in my yard for three or four years and yet there is no sign of any bloom on it. How long will it take it to bloom?
ANSWER: The tulip tree usually takes 15 or 20 years before it blooms, although occasionally it may bloom at a younger age. Incidentally, I saw the magnificent tulip tree in the state park in Hocking County in full bloom on Memorial Day. Some day when you are down that way visit Rock House State Park. As you stand on the top of the cliff above Rock House you look out into the lower branches of the magnificent tree which must be 125 feet high.

QUESTION: When is the proper time to transplant peonies and lily-of-the-valley?
ANSWER: I would recommend that lily-of-the-valley be transplanted immediately since this will give them a chance to become bloom next Spring. Incidentally, every patch of lily-of-the-valley will do much better transplanted every two or three years, thoroughly diving them when transplanting them.

QUESTION: I would like to plant one or two specimen evergreens around my yard and it is a very large yard with a half-acre lawn. What evergreens would you recommend?

ANSWER: Among the pines I would recommend the Scotch, Red, Austrian, and Himalayan. Among the spruce, I believe you will find the Serbian is the finest of all, and in the southern half of the state where you live the Oriental spruce. The silver or Concolor fir is the finest of the firs, although you might be interested in trying the Nordmann and the Veitch. I would also like to suggest for your con-

Spicy Ideas For Variety

HERE ARE some offerings culled at random from the Spring kitchen garden! Use these spicy ideas to add charm and variety to your menus.

To do right by creamed eggs, add one level teaspoon of tumeric powder (the familiar pickling spice) to a cup of cream sauce. It imparts a pretty daffodil color and a suspicion of curry flavor. Tumeric powder can also be used in the same way to color rice. Just add it to the cooking water.

Asparagus is a pleasing vegetable, but when served too often with just drawn butter or an Hollandaise sauce, it loses its appeal. Asparagus Vinaigrette is the answer to all this. It can be made with fresh asparagus or left-over asparagus. Either way it is delicious.

The asparagus should be cooked and cold with the toughened stem removed. Make a French dressing of a cup of olive oil, one-fourth cup vinegar, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon dried mustard and enough black pepper to cover the bottom of the bowl. Beat it together until it is well blended. How to make the Vinaigrette variation: Add about a teaspoon of paprika, or enough to color the mixture red, some chopped pickle, some chopped green pepper, a dash of savory and a pinch of tarragon plus a liberal pinch of onion salt. Chopped chives will help, too. Now marinate the cold asparagus in this and see that it is chilled before serving it on lettuce leaves. Strips of pimento make a nice garnish.

Cabbage Idea
A fine way to use up left-over cabbage is to place it in a heat-proof glass baking dish, pour thick cream over it and sprinkle the whole thing with a few car-
